Hearing set on parking project

The City Council Tuesday, Oct. 4, called a public hearing for Thursday, Oct. 20, on the proposed $200,000 downtown parking project.

The council will meet on the 20th instead of its regular meeting night, Tuesday, Oct. 18. Council members on the latter date will be attending a League of California Cities meeting in San Diego.

The parking program, proposed by the downtown merchants, will be financed over a 30-year period by some 149 businesses, the majority in the area embraced by Euclid Avenur to 5th Avenue and A Street to D Street.

Merchants in the "heart" of the downtown area will pay 88 per cent of the financing in increased business license fees. This will amount to approximately three times the regular fee of their business licenses, which will be based upon gross sales.

It was estimated the work will take one year to complete if approved. It will provide some 190 additional parking places downtown.

Mayor James Christensen in voicing his views on the project said he wholeheartedly endorses the downtown merchants' plans to improve the area. However, he said the city in underwriting the $200,000 bond should receive assurance that the merchants intend to follow through with the overall modernization program.

"Additional parking will not solve the downtown merchants' woes," he said. "Improvements to the buildings, a larger variety of merchandise and competitive prices are equally important."

Councilwoman Zella Stone assured the council as a member of the Downtown Merchants Committee that previously announced plans would be fulfilled. She said the parking project was merely the first phase of installing a modified mall.

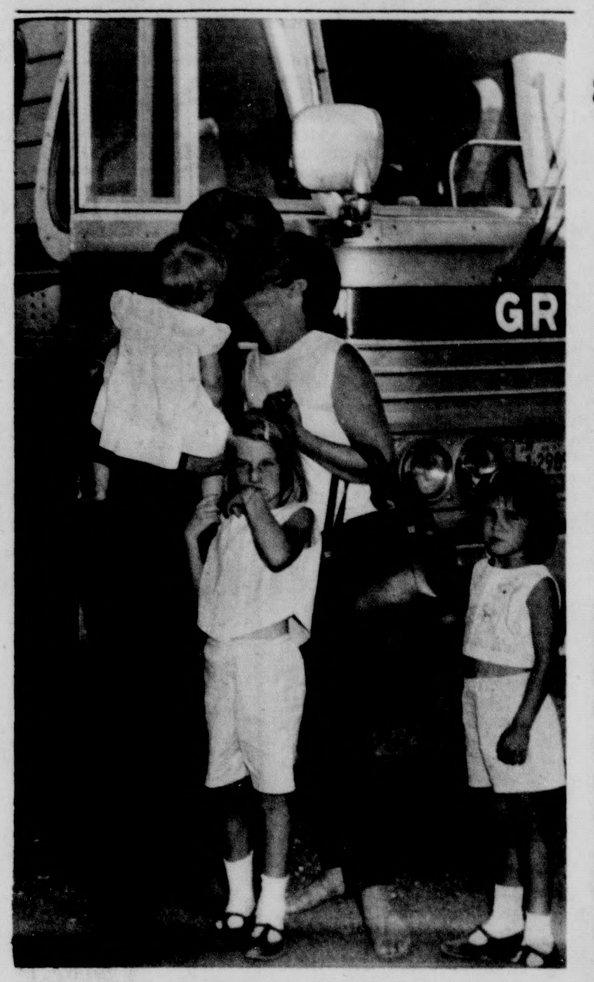

In other business, the council approved the second reading of an ordinance which doubles the present sewage rental fees. It will go into effect in 30 days and is expected to net the city of additional $70,000 annually.

The council also:

. . . approved a door-to-door fund campaign Dec. 10-11 as requested by the St. Jude Children's Research Hospital (Danny Thomas Teenagers March).

. . . approved the first reading of an ordinance regarding permitted uses of the PUCC Zone by Conditional Use Permits and Change of Occupancy Permits.

. . . approved the first reading of an ordinance defining public nuisances and prescribing the procedures for abatement of such nuisances.

More work on Big U sign recommended in report

Upland's big U sign on 9th Street needs stronger welding at the pipe joints, according to a report given to City Manager Elwin Alder by structural engineer Theodore E. Anvick.

Anvick was asked to survey the 100-foot sign by the city after it began tilting last week, necessitating blocking off traffic in the area.

The report stated that in all other aspects the sign was structurally safe, but due to the lack of detailed plans on the welding procedure for the joints of the pipe stems of the sign, it was recommended that these joints be re-welded by a stronger method.

It was noted by City Attorney Donald Maroney that although the downtown merchants erected the sign, it stands on city property and the city should make sure it is safe.

Mayor James Christensen at Tuesday night's Council meeting said that if and when the city does accept responsibility for the sign from the Retail Merchants Association of Downtown Upland, its turning motion will probably be stopped, which will take some of the strain off the supporting pole.

Auto dealer faces $100,000 contract suit

A $100,000 breach of contract suit against Upland car dealer was filed Thursday, Sept. 29, in West District Superior Court by Dr. and Mrs. Earl L. Wenger of Upland.

Grimm operated a Chevrolet agency on Foothill Boulevard until last week when the General Motors Acceptance Corp. reclaimed its cars and the agency closed.

Dr. Wenger, a dentist with offices in Ontario, and Mrs. Wenger were principal stockholders in the firm until October, 1965, when they sold their shares to Grimm, although they retained ownership of the agency's buildings and rented them to Grimm.

Under the terms of the 1965 contract, Wenger claims he was to have been paid:

--A monthly salary of $260 plus $100 for travel and entertainment.

--Use of two current model Chevrolets.

--Five annual installments of $15,500, due on March 1, plus 10 per cent interest annually due the first day of each month.

The suit claims that:

--Wenger was not paid his salary for August or September.

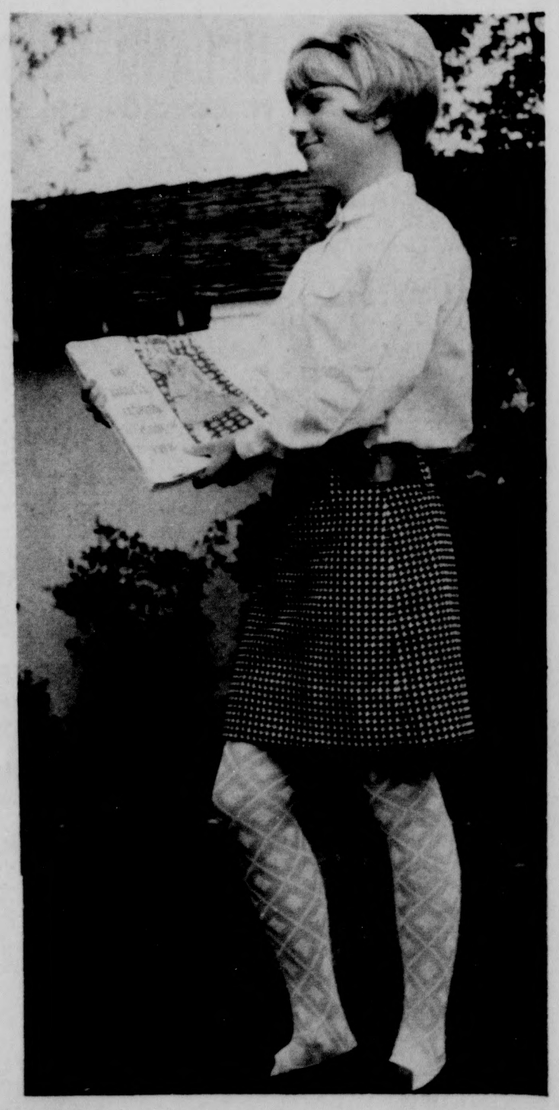

--The two Chevrolets for his use were repossessed.

--The defendant has not paid anything on the promissory note of $77,500 nor on the interest (valued at $1,291.80).

--The defendant has taken a salary in excess ($35,000) of the net profits.

--The defendant has refused to pay, on demand, $30,000 borrowed by the plaintiff for the defendant.

In a second cause for complaint, Wenger claims he has personally loaned Grimm varying sums totaling $20,000 which have not been repaid.

SORRY GIRLS - No short length, London-Look, styles will be seen on the campus of Upland High School this year. Linda Murray, 17, a senior at Upland, was told Friday that the London look is "out" for campus wear. Reason: the length of the Mod (or mini) skirts doesn't conform to the school's dress code which states that, "Acceptable skirt lengths are the middle of the knee for straight skirts and top of the knee for full or "A" shaped skirts. Special attention should be paid to the dress when sitting. Linda copied her outfit from "Seventeen," a popular young fashion magazine. Neighbors and friends agreed the Carnaby Street outfit was very pretty on Linda, but rules are rules so the short length fashions will have to be saved for weekend wear. Linda lives with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Murray, of 1291 Ukiah, Upland.

Bond issue wins by large margin

An exceptionally light turnout of voters overwhelmingly passed the industrial waste disposal bond issue on Tuesday, Oct. 4.

While needing a two-thirds majority, the bond proposal to build a $16,000,000 system passed by a 77.2% margin, with 8636 yes votes and 2544 no votes. This was a 3.394 to 1 ratio.

A total of 11,185 votes were cast out of a possible 74,480. This represents a 15.02% turnout.

There were five spoiled ballots with all five having both yes and no votes marked on each one.

The new system is to construct a waste disposal system to attract industry and develop a stable tax base for the county.

Supervisor Daniel Mikesell, who headed the citizens committee, said of of the vote:

"How gratified I am the electorate felt they could vote favorably on this issue. If there is any one thing to contribute to the total deliverance of this area as far as economics are concerned, it was passage of this bond issue. The greatest thing was unanimous support of all the cities, the Chamber of Commerce and newspapers -- and that was good for all the people."

Richard Hall, manager of the Chino Basin Municipal Water District which put on the bond issue, said:

"I'm very pleased with the outcome. I really think this was an excellent expression of Democracy in action. The people elected their representatives who developed a good plan, which was submitted to the people, who approve it. This may be a little idealistic, but I'm happy to go through life with this attitude."

Board Member Robert Walline, who served on the special bond committee, said:

"I think it will be a great boost to the industrial development of the area. The big point is it will safeguard and perpetuate the quality of our great natural source of water, the Chino Basin.

"It is most important to the City of Upland for all its eggs were put in one basket -- the Chino basin water and its tributary basins and sources which perculate into the main basin.

"Also, it will prove a factor in the settlement of the Orange County suit, for it shows good faith in the future qualities of the water which flows into Orange County. It will help keep Upland as a high class residential area."

Board Member Carl Masingale said: "I think it is the greatest thing that ever has happened to the Cucamonga area. This is one of the biggest and most important pieces to put everything together. Our tax base will be improved tremendously."

WANTED - A FRIEND - Lovely petite blond lady would like to meet nice young man -- thirteenish, or thereabouts; object -- companionship. I do not drink or smoke and I eat very little. My hair is a true blond, not from a bottle. I am presently residing at the Upland animal shelter, but you know what a place like this can do to a girl's reputation. My age? Well, we won't discuss that. Let's just say I am young and full of life -- can I spend the rest of it with you?

Mayor cites safety factor of Upland High service road

The Chaffey Union High School District Board of Trustees Monday night accepted a letter from Upland Mayor James Christensen regarding the future of service road north of Upland High School on Foothill Boulevard.

The letter follows in full:

September 22, 1966

Allan G. Smith, Superintendent
Chaffey Union High School District
211 W. Fifth St.
Ontario, Calif.

Dear Al:

I appreciate your lengthy letter of explanation of the financial condition of the C.U.H.S. District and can certainly sympatiize with you because the City of Upland is in a similar situation, as are most other governmental agencies.

However, it is our hope that the Board of Trustees will not allow this situation to exist any longer than is absolutely necessary.

It is the belief of the City Council of Upland that there are many safety factors to be achieved through the use of a proper service road at the location of Upland High School. If one life is lost where we could have prevented it through better traffic control, then the expenditures of funds seems small and insignificant in comparison.

I again reiterate our desire and hope to have this service road completed as soon as possible.

Thanking you for your cooperation, I remain,

Respectfully yours,
James L. Christensen
Mayor

Bishop J. Waskom Pickett

Noted Methodist leader speaks here on Oct. 9

Bishop J. Waskom Pickett of the Methodist Church of India and U.S.A. will speak at the First Methodist Church, Upland, morning worship services at 8:45 and 11:00 a.m. Sunday, Oct. 9. His subject will be "Let the Man-Made Gods Die".

Bishop Pickett also will be the featured speaker at a Youth Rally for Methodist youth of this area that same evening at 7:00 p.m. in Fellowship Hall, 263 N. First Ave., Upland, when he speaks on "God Needs You at Your Best."

Bishop Pickett is one of the best informed American spokesmen for India. During his 40 years in India he served as pastor, editor, publisher and bishop. He was closely associated with many of its most successful educational and medical missionary institutions.

Until recently Nepal was closed to Christian missionaries, but under his leadership the United Christian Mission of Nepal was organized now serving this Himalayan kingdom with three hospitals, several educational institutions and a missionary force of over 100.

Bishop Pickett conferred often with Mahatma Ghandi and Pundit Nehru and was frequently consulted by them as they prepared for India's independence and constitution. When violence broke out upon the partition of India and Pakistan, Bishop Pickett organized and led the Christian Relief Committee which was thanked by both governments, and was credited with saving the lives of several hundred thousands of Hindus, Moslems and Sikhs.

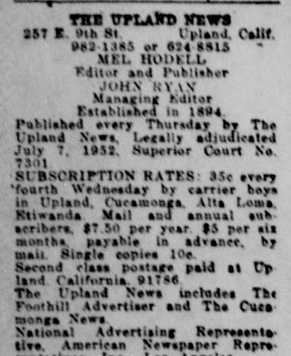

On the request of Prime Minister Nehru, Bishop Pickett appealed to the U.S. State Department and President Eisenhower and was influential in improving relations between the two countries, which has resulted in substantial food for relief of India's recent famine.

Under the auspices of the Rockefeller supported Institute of Social and Religious Research, after prolonged research, Bishop Pickett wrote the book "Christian Mass Movements in India" widely acclaimed by sociologists as well as churchmen.

The archbishop of Canterbury called it "the greatest book on Christian Missions written in modern times."

Another of his books, "Christ's Way to India's Heart" has been translated into 12 languages.

Bishop Pickett is the house guest of Rev. Willard Schurr who has known him through the years.

How much safety do you want for your money?

Financial safety comes in all shapes and sizes. There are safe investments and risky investments—and ones that are in between. Depending upon how much risk you want to take, your money can be invested in a variety of ways.

Your savings, however, are another thing. This is money you do not want to risk—no matter how safe the investment appears. This is money you want to be able to count on at all times and under all conditions. And when you want your money that safe and that available—you want it in the bank.

"OH, YOU KID!" -- The "CHARLESTON Era" was recreated by members of the Francis Avenue singers who entertained Saturday night, Sept. 24, at the Upland Women's Club Roaring 20's Party. The group takes its name from the 11 vocally talented members who make their homes on Francis Avenue in Upland. The singers entertain throughout the year for various groups and affairs, such as the Women's Club and the Los Angeles County Fair. Shown above are Mrs. Kenneth Holme, Garland Rogers, Mrs. Elbert Harris, Kenneth Holme, and Mrs. Garland Rogers. Other members of the group include Mr. and Mrs. Charles Rowland, Elbert Harris, Mrs. Robert Munz, Mrs. Richard Houghland, and Mrs. James McLauchlin. Accompaniest for the group is Mrs. Marge Snyder.

Women's Club party a 'roaring' success

The Roaring 20's Party at the Upland Women's Club last week was a huge success. Everyone was in costume--short shifts with fringe, long beads and earrings, feathers in bands around the hair complete with spit-curls were worn.

Simulated champagne punch began the evening and was served in the Elliot Ness Cafe.

The delicious dinner was served by girls of Kappa Ni, a service club, from Upland High School.

The menu was Flapper Chicken, Charleston Beans, Shimmy Salad, Model T Sauce, Bobbed Radishes, Flivver Rolls and Butter, Coffee in Flask, Prohibition Tea.

The tables were beautifully decorated with old champagne bottles and serpentine streamers. The gaily dressed flappers were welcomed by the president, Mrs. C.S. Stowell and the invocation was given by Mrs. J.B. Swingle.

Toastmistress was Mrs. Maurice Fehlman, who was chairman of the event.

The program, planned by Mrs. Lewis Stokes, was apropos to the period of the '20's.

The Francis Avenue Singers, directed by Garland Rogers, presented a half-hour program of song and music. The group was dressed in costume for the 20's era and several numbers played on banjo, guitar, washboard, wash-tub and ukulele were particularly effective.

A Charleston contest was also held.

Mrs. Adrian Seeley presented more than 25 door prizes which had been donated by merchants of Upland.

New members honored and welcomed into the club were Mmes. Warren Atteberry, C.E. Barry, Boris Cherbak, James Christensen, Hugh Cleveland, W.H. Dalton, Frank Larsen, L. Russell McKee, John Robinson, Richard Sheridan, M. A. Uhl, also Mrs. Wilma Koeker, Mrs. Ethel Hadley, Mrs. Elizabeth Tinker and Miss Dorothy Shaw.

In charge of decorations was Mrs. Wayne Dennis; menu, Mrs. Walter Saccani; table setting, Mrs. Gordon Anderson; punch bowl, Mrs. C.I. Cartwright; door prizes, Mrs. Adrian and Mrs. John Beck; printing and arrangements, Mrs. Floyd Kellner and Mrs. Merle Cox.

Mr. and Mrs. Mark Hollanitsch

Miss Sherilyn Simonsen bride of Mark Hollanitsch

Miss Sherilyn Daun Simonsen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin J. Simonsen, 1093 E. 9th St., Upland, became the bride of Mark Gregory Hollanitsch, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gregory Hollanitsch, St. Paul, Minn., Sept. 16.

The Rev. R. C. Anderson performed the double ring ceremony before 150 guests at the First Lutheran Church in Ontario.

The bride wore a floor-length, empire waist, gown made by her mother. The wedding gown featured an A-line, Peau de Soi skirt, with lace sleeves and a chapel train fastened with a bow at the waist.

The bride's headdress consisted of organza flowers and net and seed pearls with a fingertip silk veil.

The bridal flowers were cascading butterfly orchids and stephonitas.

Miss Dianna Zets, 538 N. 6th Ave., Upland, served as maid of honor.

Edwin Eugene Simonsen, brother of the bride, was the best man. Ushers included: Larry Anderson of Ontario; John Hauge of Ontario; and Steve Stricker, 1025 W. Arrow Hwy., Upland.

Leslie Henderson was flower girl carrying a basket of pink carnations. Johnnie Henderson was the ring bearer.

A wedding reception followed at the church.

They are now at home at 127 N. 13th Ave., Upland, following a short wedding trip.

They will move to Minnesota in February of 1967.

Foothill Council PTA meets

The first fall meeting of Foothill Council of Parent-Teacher Associations was held recently at the Presbyterian Church in Upland. Mrs. Boris Cherbak, parliamentarian, led the members in the Pledge of Allegiance and Mrs. Joe Voss, spiritual and character chairman read the thought for the day entitled "Don't Quit".

Mrs. Jesse Wise, council president, presided over the business portion of the meeting. It was with regret that the organization accepted the resignation of Mrs. Frank Mizuno as auditor. Mrs. Henry Brune was ratified to fill the position.

It was noted that the Upland Elementary School PTA will be placed on the inactive list with Council and Fifth District CCPT until their school will be restored for future elementary educational functions.

Mrs. R.F. Hutton had the pleasure of distributing unit checks gained from the Summer Movie Matinee Program sponsored by Foothill Council PTA.

The Pre-school Vision Testing Program will become a reality by November according to Mrs. Wise. Workshops are being held throughout Fifth District PTA to train volunteers for this program.

Mrs. Brisoe Root, juvenile and protection chairman, informed members that the Upland City School Traffic Safety Committee was formulating plans for a district-wide safety program in the schools this fall. During the summer students often become careless about bicycle rules. In order to save lives, an early refresher course is necessary. Any complaints, questions or compliments may be addressed to: Upland School Traffic Safety Committee, P.O. Box 496, Upland, for immediate consideration.

Mrs. Kenneth Bishop was ratified as welfare chairman for Foothill Council. Workshops for unit officers and chairman were held by council personnel.

The meeting was well-attended with the Upland Junior High School Parent-Teacher Association acting as hostess unit. Mrs. Thomas Glasheen, Mrs. Dorothy Knighton, Mrs. Floyd Stork and Mrs. Clifford French served the assembled from a fall-bedecked coffee table.

Delegates from Foothill Council to the two-day conference at Oak Glen were Mrs. Jesse Wise, Mrs. Lilburn Holland, Mrs. A.T. Arbezzi, Mrs. Charles Krizak, Mrs. Aubrey Collins, Mrs. Ray Stansbury and Mrs. Boris Cherbak.

Veteran actor Andy Devine will be master of ceremonies, according to Reed Sprinkel, co-chairman for the San Bernardino County Committee to elect Reagan.

Richard Davidson, chairman of ticket sales, said that tickets may be purchased at both the Upland Republican Headquarters or at the Elks Club.

More than 600 persons are expected to attend the event. Tickets are $10.

Following the luncheon, Reagan will tour the Kaiser Steel Plant in Fontana and meet with employees. The public is also invited to greet Reagan at 2 p.m. at the administration building at the main entrance of the Kaiser Steel Plant just off Cherry Avenue.

Other members of the committee planning the luncheon are Bob Hughes, Mrs. Evelyn Brown, Roger Luby, Charles Gladsen and Mrs. Bea Riggs.

On Thursday morning, Oct. 6, the first meeting of the season for the Foothill Philharmonic Committee will be called to order by the president, Mrs. Frederick Hooper.

The meeting will convene in the home of Mrs. Kenneth Hull on Euclid Ave., Upland.

Following the business meeting, David Grimes of Altadena will present a lecture-recital, "Four Centuries of the Guitar."

This program will offer material to enhance the enjoyment of the concert of The Four Romeros, which is the first presentation of the Artist Course, and is slated for the evening of Oct. 6 in Bridges Auditorium on the Pomona Campus.

Mrs. Nelson Bell, hospitality chairman, has made arrangements for luncheon to be served following the program. She will be assisted by: Mmes. George E. Carlberg, Richard L. Carr, Melvin E. Ralston, Dean H. Sheldon, and Ellson F. Smith.

League of Women Voters to study water pollution

The League of Women Voters of West San Bernardino County will begin a new study on water quality in California. The first discussion group will meet at 7:30 p.m., Thursday, Sept. 29, in the Security First National Bank of Chino, on Central Avenue.

Another unit will meet at the home of Mrs. W.W. Stevens, 1690 San Antonio Ave., Upland, at 9:30 a.m., Friday, Sept. 30.

The pollution of water in other parts of the United States has caused great problems. Californians should be aware that the waters of this state are already polluted in a number of areas. Our citizens must find solutions to this problem, and put them into effect before pollution reaches dangerous proportions.

The League of Women Voters of California will investigate the problems, the proposed solutions, and come to consensus on the best ways to handle the situation.

Membership in the League is open to any woman of voting age. Anyone interested in attending either of these meetings is invited to attend. Further information may be obtained from Mrs. Floy Madden, 628-5078, or Mrs. Jack Pierce, 982-9883.

Young Republican group reactivated

The Pomona Valley Young Republican Club has been reactivated and will meet Wednesday, Oct. 5, at 2090 N. Gary, Pomona.

Speaker will be Assemblyman James Whetmore, who is a senatorial candidate from the 35th District.

Toastmistress program set for Oct. 10

Study of workbooks begins for Serrano Toastmistress members at their next regular meeting Monday, Oct. 10 at the Jade Palace in Montclair. New members Mrs. Harris Patterson and Mrs. John Doktor will be doing assignments from Workbook I.

Mrs. Everett Koch will introduce continuing members Mrs. Kenneth Moore, Mrs. Edgar Kesel, Mrs. John Bond and Mrs. Richard Durrell who will present courtesy speeches as described in Workbook II.

Courtesy speeches are required occasionally of any club member and study of Toastmistress procedures prepares women to handle such situations with poise.

Also on the Oct. 10 program, Mrs. Robert Snedaker will present table topics and occupy the hot seat. She will have to perform the duties of any member who cannot attend.

Mrs. Tom Yates of Claremont was a guest at the Sept. 26 meeting held at the Jade Palace when Mrs. Patterson and Mrs. Doktor gave their maiden voyage speeches.

For information regarding meeting times and places of Serrano Toastmistress Club, women may call Mrs. Bond 626-8789 or Mrs. Snedaker 982-8220.

Planners to meet

The County Planning Commission will meet Thursday, Oct. 13.

PETTIS CONGRESS

Friday, Oct. 14

West End businesswomen host Ivy Baker Priest

Mrs. Ivy Baker Priest, who served as United States Treasurer for a period of eight years during the Eisenhower administration and who is now a candidate for the office of state treasurer, will be presented to West End voters by Business and Professional Women's Clubs in the area at 7:30 p.m., Friday, Oct. 14, at the Upland Women's Club house, 590 N. 2nd Ave., Upland.

Mrs. Priest is one of four candidates seeking state elective offices in the November election who have been carefully screened and endorsed by the California Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs.

Although the California Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs is a nonpartisan organization, it has developed a unique process known as The Political Promotion Project through which members work, on a voluntary basis, to promote qualified women for election to public office.

An equal number of candidates from the Republican and Democratic parties have been endorsed and are being promoted through this project in various sections of the state.

The other candidates are: Mrs. Pauline Davis, Democratic incumbent in the 2nd Assembly District, and the only woman now serving in the State Legislature; Mrs. March K. Fong, Democratic candidate for Mrs. Norma Yocum, Mayor of Alhambra, a Republican candidate for the 45th Assembly District.

Since she seeks a state constitutional office, Mrs. Priest is the only one of the four candidates for whom members throughout the state may actually vote, but other means of support and promotion are bieng used to assist all candidates.

Mrs. Beatrice Riggs of the Upland BPW Club is chairman of the Oct. 15 event. The Ontario, Chino and Montclair Heights BPW Clubs have been

Mrs. Priest's address will be given at approximately 8 p.m.

Mrs. Priest's address will given at approximately 8 p.m.. A special hour will be held prior to and following the address to afford those present an opportunity to meet the candidate personally. All interested voters are urged to attend.

Seventh-day Adventists Plan 'Night Owl' radio program

Members of the West End Seventh-day Adventist Church, many of whom live in Upland, are going to help sponsor preaching services for "Night Owls."

Pastor Ansel L. Bristol of the local congregation, who lives in Upland, announced today that a special offering will be taken at 11 a.m. on Saturday, Oct. 8, to launch the church's international radio broadcast, "The Voice of Prophecy," on a 12 p.m.-5 a.m. schedule of America's "clear channel" radio stations.

"There are some 30,000,000 persons in the United States alone who are listening to radio during the late-night or early-morning hours," stated Pastor Bristol in announcing the local church's financial support of the new religious radio programming.

"Many of these people, because of their nighttime working hours, miss attending church services on the weekend. Many of them appreciate Bible presentations which they receive on their radios where they work. The 'Night Owls' of our land represent a special mission of the church, a mission which our congregation does not intend to ignore."

Fun after 50 Club slates trip Oct. 18

The Upland Senior Citizens "Fun After Fifty Club" met for its regular potluck dinner, Wednesday, Sept. 28, at the Memorial Park clubhouse.

President Milton Tees called the meeting to order. The invocation was given by Myrtle Allen and the pledge of allegiance and the singing of America was led by Mr. Tees.

Wiley Mather gave a talk on early California history, its politics and governors, which was very interesting to newcomers to the state.

Because the new treasurer Mary Ellis has moved from Upland, Mrs. George Knittle will continue in her old job following a unanimous vote by all members.

Glen Towers, last year's tour chairman, has agreed to continue in that position but having moved to Montclair will have an added expense for the National phone number so it was discussed and agreed that the club should help him with this expense.

60 entrants expected

Fencing club holds first meet Oct. 6

The first Amateur Fencing League of America (AFLA) tournament ever held in San Bernardino County will be held at a.m., Saturday, Oct. 8, at the Montclair High School Aud-

More than 60 novice fencers from throughout Southern California are expected to enter the day-long event hosted by the West End Fencing Club and sponsored by AFLA.

Besides being the first tournament ever held in the county, the event will be the first tournament of its kind ever conducted in Southern California. It is scheduled as a "Novice event" with participation from fencers with less than two years experience.

The event was scheduled particularly for West End Fencers who mostly fall under the novice category.

The tournament recognizes the rapidly growing West End Fencing Club. Two years ago, there was seldom a blade crossed anywhere in the West End. But in recent months, the sport of fencing has grown rapidly.

The tournament is the first in a series throughout Southern California. Numerous other tournaments are scheduled in other cities which will lead to state championship competition early next year.

The tournament is open to the public at no charge, anyone is welcome to attend.

For additional information contact Mr. Samuel Crowe, 984-2478.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack B. Dineen, 311 Airport Dr., Upland, are the parents of a daughter, born Sept. 15 at San Antonio Community Hospital.

"GAS AIR CONDITIONING? IT'S REFRESHING!"

"But how do you get the dog out for a walk?"

Everyone likes it better inside with gas air conditioning.

There's just nothing more refreshing—unless perhaps it's the idea of saving money.

The initial cost of gas air conditioning units has gone down an average of 20% in the last five years, and it's an expenditure that adds greatly to the long term value of your home. If you have forced air heating, you may be able to save by using the same ductwork for cooling.

With a bare minimum of moving parts, a simple gas air conditioning unit lasts twice as long as more complicated air conditioning equipment. That means big savings on repairs and maintenance.

As a fuel, gas is most economical and there is a special low rate with savings up to 25% on gas used for air conditioning May through October.

Nothing takes the heat off you better or more economically than gas air conditioning. For more information, write for "The Quiet Facts" from The Gas Company.

Casa Alegre Auxiliary meets

District director outlines Children's Society services

On Wednesday, Sept. 28, the Casa Alegre Auxiliary of the Children's Home Society of California hosted a salad buffet at the home of Mrs. Royal Keeran, 1637 N. Laurel Ave., Upland.

Greeting the women at the door were Mrs. Howard B. Jones, president; Mrs. Harry Thompson and Mrs. Keeran.

The 30 guests enjoyed punch and a variety of delicious salads created by the active members. The luncheon was held to stimulate interest and support in the auxiliary that aids the society in this community.

The outdoor setting around the pool was beautifully decorated by luncheon chairman, Mrs. Ben Hemphill, and her committee with large vivid sunflowers in bright ceramic pots, on tables of orange and gold. A large bouquet of sunflowers adorned the pool.

After the luncheon Mrs. Jones introduced Mrs. Beatrice Clayton, district director of volunteers for Riverside, San Bernardino, and Orange counties. Mrs. Clayton explained to the guests that Casa Alegre is one of 200 auxiliaries in the state of California offering its aid and support to Children's Home Society which is the largest private licensed adoption agency in the state.

She explained that it is guided by the California state laws and serves every community. All of the districts work together within the society in its work of placing children for adoption, as well as working with the other 31 adoption agencies in California. Since it is a private agency it is not supported by state funds in any of its expenses.

The cost of placing each child in a home is about $1,200. This cost includes the counseling of the natural parent or parents, medical expenses of the mother and child, placement, and visitation and counseling for adoptive parents.

The maximum fee for adopting a child is $650. This fee can be reduced or waived depending on the financial circumstances of the couple. Forty-five per cent of the society's annual income is derived from this fee.

Funds raised by auxiliaries through their membership or events make up 21 per cent of the remainder coming from united funds, community chest, bequests, grants or solicitation.

Mrs. Clayton discussed the three services Children's Home Society provides. First, services are provided to the natural parents. Some unwed mothers or parents due to death, divorce, or fianacial difficulties feel confused and desperate with regard to their abilities in raising their children. The society has one of the largest records for counseling to help these parents keep their children if it is at all possible.

The society also provides services to the child. It strives primarily to find the best possible home for that specific child.

Homes for older children and children of mixed heritage are often harder to find. The average period of application is from three to eight months.

Services are provided to the adopting parents, before as well as after receiving their adoptive child. Case workers work very closely with these couples during this period of adjustment.

California-trained battalion arrives for duty in Vietnam

FORT IRWIN, Calif.--The arrival of the 2nd Battalion, 34th Armor, in Vietnam has been announced by Headquarters, II Field Force Vietnam.

The tank battalion departed Fort Irwin on Aug. 20, and arrived in Vietnam on Sept. 12. According to the information received, the unit landed on the beach at the port city of Vung Tau near Saigon, and immediately moved to an undisclosed position.

The men, under the command of Lt. Col. Raymond L. Staley, have joined some 305,000 American fighting men already in South Vietnam.

The battalion had been at the U.S. Army Armor and Desert Training Center here since 1963 while assigned to the 4th Infantry Division headquarters at Fort Lewis, Wash..

While here, the battalion had trained under the "train and retain" concept, which involved the receiving and training of new soldiers by experienced officers and noncommissioned officers for eventual re deployment.

The men of the 2nd Battalion were greeted in Vung Tau by Brig. Gen. Richard T. Knowles, II Field Force Vietnam chief of staff, who stated, "We feel we have made significant progress, particularly in the last six months, and hope that you attain the same feeling of accomplishment during your year here."

League opener at Cal Poly stadium

Upland meets Ganesha

By TERRY COVILLE

BEST HIGHLANDERS - Named as Highlanders of the week for their outstanding play against the Alta Loma Braves were halfback Pat Quinn (left) and center Richard Seaman. Quinn was the leader in a crunching ground attack that beat Alta Loma 19-0, while Seaman was a standout on both offense and defense in the line.

Grid game films shown Mondays

The Upland High School Athletic Booster Club in cooperation with varsity football coach Jack Frost will show films of the latest Highlander game at 7:30 p.m., every Monday in the Physical Education Building.

Frost will explain the previous Friday night game to interested persons. Everyone is invited, and there is no charge.

The Booster club pays for all the film used to record game action.

The battle of two all-conference halfbacks might be the billing for Upland High School's football game with the Ganesha Giants at 8 p.m., Friday, Oct. 7 at Cal Poly Stadium in Pomona. The contest marks the opening of League play.

Carrying the banner for the Highlanders will be Pat Quinn. Al Winfield is the Ganesh halfback standout. Both were all-conference selections last season.

Upland coach Jack Frost rates Quinn the stronger runner but said that Wingfield may have a little more speed and deceptiveness.

The running game will again have to carry the main load for the Highlanders against what may be one of the toughest opponents in the San Antonio League.

Last week Ganesha was overpowered by CIF giant West Covina, a team that finished on top of the CIF standings in 1965. Upland ran over Alta Loma 19-0 but Frost pointed out that playing Alta Loma is not comparable to playing West Covina.

Ganesha, along with Montclair, was rated as the powerhouse in the SAL, before the season opened and that opinion has not changed.

Last week's game against the Alta Loma Braves showed that Frost's boys are ready for league action. The ground game was bruising and so was the defensive line play, but the passing game is still weak.

One bright spot for the Highlanders was the outstanding line play of Jay Jones at left guard on defense as he filled in for the injured Gary Cooper.

Other standouts on defense included Steve Christensen at safety and Richard Seaman, lineman of the week, at tackle.

On offense Frost was especially pleased with the blocking. "Blocking was real sharp for this early in the season," he said.

Steve Quinn and Dave Garcia were standouts as blocking backs, and Frost said Jim Walton did a tremendous job on the front wall.

Frost claims the key to the Upland victory over the Braves was the ability of the defense to bottle up quarterback Rocky Long. "Dave Huey and Bob Nichols at the defensive end jobs put a lot of pressure on Long and gave hime time only for quick passes," Frost said.

For the upcoming contest with the Giants, Upland will have to again rely on its strong running attack which features Pat Quinn.

Against the Braves Quinn rolled up 140 yards on 29 carries. However, Ganesha's Wingfield is a strong breakaway threat.

Upland may have more rounded power with the added running of sophomore Jim Cooper who will start at fullback and the steady performance of sophomore halfback Steve Quinn, Pat's younger brother.

In practice this week, Frost may have found another surprise in the running ability of John St. Martin, up until now a defensive standout.

"Against the second team defense he has been unstoppable," Frost said.

St. Martin, a senior, hadn't played football since his freshman year at Pomona Catholic High School. Thus far he has been a top defensive halfback.

Ganesha is a tough opponent for Upland to face in its league opener, but they faced the Giants in the same position last year and walked away with a 20-7 victory.

This time they might have to run away with it.

Upland vs. Ontario at Chaffey High

Pop Warner grid teams see action Sunday

It was a gloomy day Sunday, Oct. 2, for Upland Pop Warner football fans as all three Upland teams went down to defeat on the Upland High School practice field.

The Upland Falcons, in the Mt. Baldy Conference Pee-Wee division, were edged, 13-0, by the visiting Montclair Marauders thanks to a fumble by the Falcons on the first play. Three plays later the Marauders shoved across their first TD but the extra point try was stopped.

Both settled down during the second quarter until Montclair produced an end sweep that took them to the Upland 17 from where they went over for the touchdown and extra point.

Both teams played strong football in their second half but no one could cross the goal line. The only Upland threat came in the first half when the Falcons drove to the Montclair five yard line with good running. But the Marauders held there and gained possession of the ball as the half ended.

Mike Kennett, Falcons, received a transistor radio before the game started as a reward for selling the most raffle tickets to the kick-off bowl game held Sept. 18.

In another Pop Warner game, the Upland T-Birds, also in the Mt. Baldy Conference Pee-Wee Division, were ground under by a strong Claremont Buccaneers attack, 27-13.

The visiting Buccaneers tallied a touchdown in every quarter while the host team struck back twice in the last quarter.

The first three touch downs for Claremont were scored by halfback Mitch Trafton. T-Bird quarterback Al Trudeau led his team 54 yards in ine plays for their first touchdown. During the drive Trudeau hit and Raul Abrego with four passes for gains of 10, 14, 4 and 12 yards.

The second TD for the T-birds came on a 50-yard pass and run from Trudeau to Robbert Fuentes.

T-Bird winner for the raffle ticket sales was Tommy Mitchell. He also received a transistor radio.

The Upland Chargers, of the Midget Division, suffered the greatest setback of the afternoon as they were handed a 27-0 loss by the Claremont Buccaneers (midgets).

The Buccaneers exploded for 20 points in the second quarter to add to their seven in the first quarter. Passing was the key to victory as Claremont scored their three second quarter touchdowns by passes.

The Chargers put up a strong defensive battle in the second half, blanking the Claremont team, but were unalbe to hit the scoreboard themselves.

Next games for the Upland teams will be Sunday, Oct. 9, at Chaffey High School.

The T-Birds will play the Ontario Rams at 12 noon; the Falcons meet the Ontario Packers at 1:30 p.m.; and the Chargers will go against the Ontario Bandits at 3 p.m.

High school board settles 22 items

The Chaffey Union High School Board of Trustees quickly dispersed 22 items on the agenda Oct. 3 in one of the Board's quicker meetings.

The trustees approved a motion requesting the architectural firm of Harnish, Morgan & Causey to survey and give a report on the structural soundness of Tower Hall on the Chaffey High School campus.

The action was decided upon because Tower Hall is the only building in the District constructed before the Field Act was established in 1933. The Field Act set up a strict structural code which school construction must follow.

If the building does not meet the requirement of the Field Act it will have to be either rebuilt to conform or torn down.

THE BOARD ALSO approved the Associated Student Body budgets of the four district high schools for 1966-67.

Planned budgets range as follows: Alta Loma, $21,354; Chaffey, $55,270; Montclair, $15,-254.12; and Upland, $34,023.

Major income is derived from the sale of student body activity tickets, yearbooks and admission to athletic contests. Major expenditures include athletics, student council and equipment for the student body.

The sum of $18,772.09 in expenditures from the general fund was also approved, while expenditures of $12,287.78 from the bond building funds was accepted.

IN OTHER BUSINESS the Board:

--Accepted the audit report which was submitted without comment. Trustees gave a note of thanks to business manager Milo Thomas for doing an excellent job throughout the year.

--Voted to increase the District's insurance limits a total of $1,968,115.

--Accepted a notice of completion of air conditioning work at Montclair High School by Ferry Heating and Air Conditioning.

--Approved the withdrawal of a bid by Stockwell & Binney because of inability to supply the specified 12 four-drawer files and four two-door files. The Board was informed that the files could be purchased from Stationers Corp. at a cost of $658.74.

--Hired Alden Bond on probationary status as custodian on the Upland campus.

--Put Ernest Slagle, a custodian at Montclair, on permanent status.

--Heard an oral report from Supt. Allan Smith on the Industry-Council council meeting Oct. 3 and 4 in Palm Desert. Smith said the two day conference exhibited a high note of cooperation between industry and education.

4-H Club serves youth in county

Most people consider it good fortune to spot a four-leaf clover, but those who find a four-leaf clover with an "H" on each leaf are even more fortunate, says Farm Advisor Don Appleton, of the University of California Agricultural Extension Service.

The well known symbol of 4-H has served one out of every five adults in the United States, and some 2-1/4 million 4-H boys and girls between the ages of 9 and 19 are currently enrolled in this youth education program throughout the 50 states and Puerto Rico.

Currently, 1,175 boys and girls in San Bernardino County belong to this youth education program sponsored by the University of California Agricultural Extension Service. These young 4-H members will be joining with their 300 adult volunteer leaders in national observance and recognition of the 52 years that the 4-H program has been in existence in this country.

With these young people, 4-H is a way of life. It offers opportunities to develop wholesome character and leadership. They learn to work together and share responsibilities. 4-H'ers explore career opportunities while gaining knowledge and skills that will be useful throughout life. But perhaps most important of all, 4-H members grow stronger together, learning to be responsible citizens and competent leaders.

Through a unique organizational structure, 4-H is cooperatively sponsored by the Agricultural Extension Service at three levels of government. It is carried on at the county level by professional farm and home advisors and a corps of volunteer leaders. Statewide, the 4-H program draws upon the University of California for educational resources and direction. Nationally, the U. S. Department of Agriculture administers the program as the youth phase of the Cooperative Extension Service. Professionals at all levels work with 1/2 million volunteer adult and junior leaders in constantly adjusting the 4-H programs to serve the interests and needs of youth.

The 4-H project, a highly successful educational method, is made more interesting with complementing activities. These offer variety to all boys and girls, whether they live in the country, suburbs, or the city. Some of the most popular areas are family living, personal development, home management, conservation, engineering, livestock, and community beautification.

Boys and girls value their 4-H training as they participate in school, church, and community groups and activities. Their lives are enriched by having found that lucky four-leaf clover with the four "H's."

Contact the County Agricultural Extension Service office, 566 Lugo Avenue, San Bernardino, for more information on the 4-H program.

Corrine Haas, Grand Champion Nubian Doe, also Jr. Champion Alpine; Linda Nichols Junior Champion Toggenberg; Roger Sharp, First place Junior Swine Showmanship; Gail Murphy and Laurie Voss, first place table setting for the club. Many other blue ribbons too numerous to mention in foods, home furnishings, clothing, agriculture, etc.

The next meeting of the Club will be a Halloween party in October to be planned by a committee with Gail Murphy as chairman.

Late News: Congratulations to Linda Nichols, a San Bernardino County Medalist in dairy goats. Also congratulations to Linda Addison, Dairy foods Medalist and Cheryl Addison, Bread Medalist.

Tom Kirkland praised Ontario and the West End for the wonderful reception given Congressman Dyal and Sen. Kennedy last Sunday.

A phone call during the meeting from Larry Levin, who arranged Sen. Kennedy's visit, informed the group that the Senator was more impressed by Ontario's reception that any other stop in California.

Enrollments for Temple Sholom due

Enrollments in Temple Sholom Sunday and Hebrew schools are still being accepted.

Although the Sunday School enrollment at Temple Sholom of Ontario is higher than it has been for many years, enrollment is still being taken for all age groups.

This year an extra teacher has been added to the staff so that class loads may remain at less than 15 students per teacher.

Philosophy of the Sunday School is to motivate the students to want to learn and to come to school because they have the desire rather than because the parents want them to.

The teaching methods of the 10 Sunday School teachers reflect this attitude.

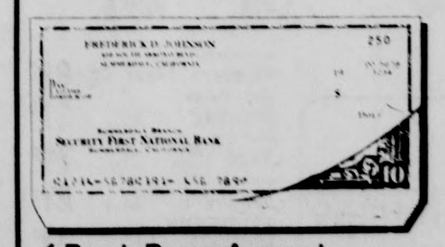

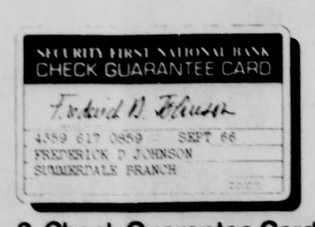

Sunday School at Temple Sholom is from 10:30 a.m., to 12 noon every Sunday. There are classes for all grades from kindergarten through 10th grade.

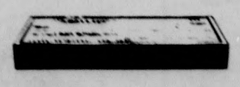

Teachers are assisted by teachers' aides and every student is considered as an individual.

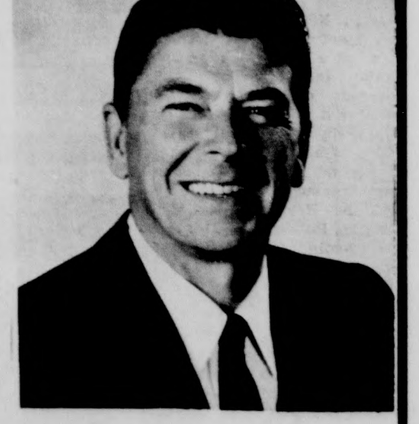

Further information concerning registration or enrollment may be obtained from Mrs. Dorothy Kapp, Sunday School secretary, at 986-0522.

Newspaper Week, Oct. 9-15

By RAY SPANGLER
President, Sigma Delta Chi
Publisher, Redwood City Tribune

In observing National Newspaper Week in 1966, the readers of newspapers should be reassured by at least one substantial gain in the never-ending fight for freedom of the press. That milestone is the passage by Congress and the signing by the President of the federal open records law. This culminates a 12-year campaign by the press under the leadership of that great friend of freedom, Congressman John E. Moss of Sacramento.

Henceforth the burden of defending secrecy will be on those who would withhold information. Heretofore the reporter has had to justify his right to access.

This action once more reflects the eloquent language of California's open meeting law, the Ralph M. Brown Act: "The people of this state do not yield their sovereignty to the agencies which serve them. The people, in delegating authority, do not give their public servants the right to decide what is good for the people to know and what is not good for them to know. The people insist on remaining informed so that they may retain control over the instruments they have created."

On the other side of the year's ledger is the Sheppard case in which the United States Supreme Court reversed a 1954 Cleveland murder conviction "since the state trial judge did not fulfill his duty to protect Sheppard from the inherently prejudicial publicity which saturated the community and to control disruptive influences in the courtroom . . . "

We now find press freedom in a head-to-head confrontation with the right to fair trial.

There are those who would minimize this conflict, but it is real and it is dangerous. In this very decision the Supreme Court cited this language:

"The principle that Justice cannot survive behind walls of silence has long been reflected in the 'Anglo-American distrust for secret trials' . . . A responsible press has always been regarded as the handmaiden of effective judicial administration, especially in the criminal field. Its function in this regard is documented by an imoressive record of service over several centuries. The press does not simply publish information about trials but guards against the miscarriage of justice by subjecting the police, prosecutors and the judicial process to extensive public scrutiny and criticism . . . "

Yet the reversal itself because of "inherently prejudicial publicity" has had reverberations throughout the nation. Police fear to question suspects, let alone tell the inquiring reporter the pertinent details about a crime. Prosecutors "dummy up" rather than prejudice their own efforts by the threat of reversal. Judges make arbitrary ruling which close the channels of information and justify it all by the Sheppard decision.

At the base of this is the lack of faith of the courts in the integrity of its own people and in the honesty of jurors. It may become the duty of the press to prove to the courts that in this day, the uninformed man is so dangerously out of touch with the mainstream of life that he is suspect--and that a juror, even though prejudiced by pre-trial news coverage, can and will discard that prjudice when so instructed by the court.

Meanwhile, the press, the guardian of freedom, must guard its own ways that the right to a fair trial is not unnecesssrily prejudiced by the name-calling headline, or by the fruitless exploitation of information not admissible in the trial.

We who exercise the Freedom of the Press in the name of the public must be ever worthy of the trust imposed upon us.

NATIONAL NEWSPAPER WEEK
OCTOBER 9-15

FILE 13

By Walt Orvis

While struggling with construction of a garden tool shed, or rather with the means of constructing one, I did some more figuring out.

Not about storage, or the lack of it in our houses. I did that a week before.

This time I figured out something about my own depressed state and feeling of doom. I didn't even know I had it until I sat down to write File 13, and every start I made came up gloomy, so gloomy I felt bad reading it over.

I started, and threw one after another into the wastebasket. I wouldn't want to pass along my gloomy outlook to anyone else.

But I figured out why things looked so gloomy. I have TWO MONDAYS every week. Now a week with one Monday in it is tough enough, but two? Ridiculous.

The paper goes to bed on Wednesday.

THURSDAY is the start of the week for anyone working on a weekly paper. So that's really Monday. Anyone can struggle through one Monday.

But then after a weekend of struggle on the Orvis estate (the weeds are still ahead of me) I come back to the office, and it's Monday, the real Monday that everyone else recognizes.

Now I ask you, should anyone have to go through two Mondays in one week?

One thing I haven't figured out about my two Mondays and that's what to do about it. It looks as if those two Mondays will continue to plague me the rest of my life.

When I started writing File 13 it must have been that extra Monday that made it so gloomy, because it was on Thursday I kept trying.

It kept getting gloomier and doomier. I was so pessimistic my usually optimistic self just couldn't take it.

A critic in "Saturday Review" once wrote that daily newspapers were the "daily disaster diet." My attempts to write File 13 were somewhat of a disaster diet.

Reading them over the world looked really black, the future hopeless, and I still have hope. It may be that those File 13s that I never finished contained more insight than I know.

I kept writing things like the world is going to perdition on a toboggan.

I had been looking at the economic and political situation, and I admit that those facets of life in America are enough to make even the president of the Optimist Club feel pessimistic.

I kept looking at the tight money that has killed the construction industry, thrown an awfully large proportion of the population out of work.

Johnson's and Congress' activities are largely responsible for the tight money, inflation, etc.

Now it appears that Johnson's cure for that is a recession. Put more people out of work. Raise taxes, so people can't buy so much so some retailers and wholesalers and factories can lay off people who then can't buy anything. That will sure-cure inflation?

Then I got to looking at Reagan and Brown, and those other politicians. Oh, brother. Enough to make the world zoom to doom.

Don't we have any leaders any more? I doubt it. We have images built by Madison Avenue and they are as substantial as pictures on the boob tube.

I won't mention television's "great new season."

See what happens with two Mondays in a week? You get to thinking of all the unpleasant things in life, and you want to stop the world and get off.

Only one thing saves me. I guess you could call it uncurable optimism. I keep hoping. I know there is hope, and though things may get much worse before they get better, they will get better.

I hope it's soon. Maybe if I had more weekends than Mondays in my week I could do some figuring out on how to make better get here ahead of worse.

Unified school district size top issue before legislature

BY LEONARD KREIDT
EDUCATION NEWS SERVICE
California Teachers Assn.

SACRAMENTO -- California needs a definition of the best unified school district in terms of school population and financial ability.

Size appears to be central to an issue which promises to get major attention in the 1967 General Session of the California Legislature -- unification of elementary and secondary school functions and how current law on the subject needs to be changed.

What brings the question of size so prominently to the fore is the language of a 1964 law (AB 145) which requires unification, with rare exceptions, to be along existing high school district boundary lines. Strict interpretation of this provision by the State Board of Education has not only created excessive local irritation, but has pushed the question of size into the limelight.

Estimates of district student population with the greatest potential for effective, efficient administration of public education ran from 2,000 up to 25,000 at a hearing on unification held Sept. 19 in San Mateo by the Assembly Subcommittee on School Efficiency and Economy, chaired by Assemblyman Alfred E. Alquist (D-San Jose).

Dr. Ronald B. Cox, associate state superintendent of public instruction, pointed out that below a certain number of pupils, in his opinion 10,000 to 12,000, the full range of educational services cannot be provided economically.

At over 25,000 pupils, on the other hand, districts begin to experience serious problems of communication, particularly with members of the community, according to Fred Bewley, consultant to the Los Angeles County Committee on School District Organization.

(Editor's note: Students enrolled in the nine elementary school districts within the Chaffey High School District totaled 26,017 during the last school year. The high school population within the di trict totaled 9,079, thereby bringing the overall total to 35,000. However, CUHS officials said that total enrollment this year after final figures are compiled should bring the grand total to 40,000. The projected figure for the district has been set at more than 100,000 students by 1980.)

J. Russell Kent, superintendent of Hillsborough Elementary School District, said a unified district should be able to support at least one comprehensive high school, which would require a minimum of 10,000 students, including elementary and secondary.

At this time, California's 1,189 school districts range in size from less than 200 students to gigantic Los Angeles City Unified with more than 600,000 in the elementary and secondary levels.

"I think what's wrong with our unification law is that it is a shotgun approach that's incapable of covering this broad size spectrum," Assemblyman Leo J. Ryan (D-Burlingame) stated. "We need more than 'high school district lines' as a definition of a good school district. We need legislation for a more rational approach."

Cox felt a workable definition can be devised, but warned that the question of financial capability complicates the matter. While present law permits assessed valuation per pupil in a proposed unified district to deviate 15 per cent from that of the original districts, Cox felt no deviation beyond 10 per cent should be allowed.

Where more than 10 per cent deviation is permitted in order to achieve a district of optimum size in number of pupils, according to Cox, the state would have to come through with either heavier support or an equalization tax.

Heart association launches intensive education program

"Six ways to guard your heart" will be the theme of the intensive public education program ever undertaken by the San Bernardino County Heart Association.

The campaign will be launched this month stressing risk factors involved in coronary attacks.

Directed by Dr. Clarence A. Paul, the association's public education chairman, the program will feature talks by physician members of the chapter's Speakers Bureau.

The physicians will present programs free of charge before clubs and organizations throughout the county.

Fire departments are also helping in the campaign by displaying posters which explain the six risk factors.

Dr. Paul is also urging business firms to join in the fight against heart disease by contacting the chapter headquarters to obtain display posters or folders.

The risk factors were incorporated this spring into the 1965-66 public education campaign, but now have become of such importance that the current program is being woven around them, Dr. Paul said.

They are:

(1) Reduce saturated fat and cholesterol in the diet.

(2) Count your calories--avoid excess weight.

(3) Control high blood pressure.

(4) Don't smoke.

(5) Exercise regularly.

(6) Have regular medical checkups.

Each year more than 500,000 people die of heart attacks in the United States, Dr. Paul pointed out.

Until recently, you couldn't have done much more than hope it wouldn't happen in your family--but now your odds are improving, he said.

Research scientists are getting closer to the secret of prevention. Their studies show that certain physical conditions and living habits increase the risk of heart attack . . . and for every one of these risks there is a practical step persons can take to counteract it, Dr. Paul declared.

He pointed out that an anti-heart attack program can be followed, with a doctor's guidance, by everyone in the family.

And children can benefit most of all if they are trained from the start in eating and living patterns that may protect their hearts in adult life, Dr. Paul stressed.

Persons seeking more information regarding the risk factors are urged to contact the county Heart Association office, 760 N. D St., San Bernardino.

The speakers bureau has proved so popular in the past year that requests for programs must be scheduled several weeks in advance.

Program chairmen of clubs and organizations desiring to hear talks by the physicians or see film concerning the risk factors or other aspects of the war on heart disease should contact the local chapter as soon as possible, Dr. Paul said.

Before complaining regarding the high cost of living, readers of The Upland News should glance over the following list of prices which prevailed in Mississippi during the Civil War. The list was furnished The News by Mrs. T.R. Woodbridge, who copied it from an old account book kept by her mother during the Civil War. Twenty-five pounds of sugar, $8.25; 3 gallons coal oil, $9.; 1 box mustard, $3; 1 grater, $1.50; 1 bonnet, $10; 1 kit mackerel, $7.; 3 pocket knives, $12.

It is possible that Upland may be the location of a moving picture studio if the City Council, merchants and residents cooperate. Messrs. Webb, Foster and Pressley, the moviemen, pronounced Upland a most desirable spot. Mr. Pressley stated that people generally had the wrong impression of moving picture people as a while, believing that they were a tough and decidedly undesirable lot. He said they are the same as people earning a livelihood in any other business and undesireables are being weeded out and as the movie making business grown the class of employees is being rapidly bettered.

IN THE CLASSIFIED ADS: For rent, seven-room modern house. Water paid, $13 per month. Want good tenants. Phone 37-X-1.

Nevins charges Proposition 3 threatens property tax base

Dear Mr. Hodell:

In 1962, your newspaper took an editorial position against Propostion 4 - in essence a tax relief measure for agricultural land.

Again this year, our electorate is being asked to approve a measure designed to provide property tax relief for a favored few - this time the measure is known as Proposition 3

"Passage of Proposition 3 in November will result in a serious erosion of local government's property tax base," warned Richard Nevins, Southern California member of the Board of Equalization, as he urged cities and counties in the Fourth Equalization District to join in his fight against so-called "green space lovers" seeking preferential property tax treatment.

Urging local governmental jurisdictions to adopt resolutions opposing the measure, he pointed out that special treatment for a few is not only discriminatory, but it violates the principle of equalized assessment of all properties.

Nevins said that, as a tax official, he is both personally and professionally against the proposed constitutional amendment. He stressed that Proposition 3 would permit the lowering of taxes for special groups disguised as "open space conservators" whose taxes would necessarily be shifted to home owners, business people, and industrial property owners.

"Proposition 3 lets speculators take all the profit from land sales by escaping taxes under the guise of natural resources. Farm land owners are adequately protected under the California Land Conservation Act of 1965 if they will restrict their land to agricultural uses for ten years," Nevins declared. "No other tax break is justified.

"If it is proper and desirable to have open spaces, let them be so dedicated in perpetuity." The tax official continued, "There is no justification for expensive tracts being held for speculation under the guise of scenic beauty or production of food and fibre.

Nevins is a co-author -- with Los Angeles County Tax Assessor Philip E. Watson and Felix J. Weil, Secretary, Property Taxpayers Council -- of this year's ballot argument against Proposition 3. In 1962 he co-authored the ballot argument against Proposition 4, and spearheaded a vigorous campaign against that measure which was designed to grant preferential tax treatment to agricultural land.

Outlining his views in a letter to the Mayors and County Supervisors in his Equalization District, Nevins concluded, "California's voters must not permit further erosion of the property tax base. They defeated Proposition 4 by more than 20,000 votes and I feel sure they will reject preferential treatment for 'green space lovers' this year."

ballot argument against Proposition 3 is enclosed for your consideration.

I will be pleased to answer any questions you may have in regard to this "tax shift" scheme.

Sincerely,
Richard Nevins
Member
State Board of Equalization

THE FROSH NOMINATIONS ASSEMBLY to be held in the auditorium, Thursday, Oct. 6, concludes a week of busy campaigning for some members of the newest class on the UHS campus. For the newly elected officers the hard work is just starting. The upper three classes have one month's work and planning behind them already for the year's activities and the Frosh have a lot of catching up to do.

In just two short weeks from now the traditional money raising project, the Frosh candy sale, begins. This project is a big job and a great deal of work and planning must go into it if it is to be a real success.

However, from the spirit shown by the Freshmen already, it looks like UHS has another class it can really be proud of!

Upland grad enrolled at U. of Hawaii

A two-month vacation in Hawaii this summer has turned out to be an educational boon for Miss Leslie Olson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred J. Olson, 1531 N. Laurel Ave., Upland.

After visiting friends in Hawaii during the months of June, July and August, Leslie liked the islands so much she has decided to stay in Honolulu and attend the University of Hawaii.

Leslie is a 1964 graduate of Upland High School and attended Chaffey College for one year as a pre-medical major. At Chaffey she was an AWS representative and an officer in the Zonettes club.

At the University of Hawaii Leslie will continue her studies in the medical field. As a sidelight she is trying to learn the Hawaiian language.

Architectural Commission still active

Exterior plans for a proposed Shell Oil service station on the north side of Foothill Boulevard, west of 2nd Avenue, were approved Thursday, Sept. 29, by the Upland Architectural Commission.

Also approved were the exterior plans for a Kentucky Fried Chicken, take-home establishment, on the north side of Foothill Boulevard, across from Memorial Park.

A sign variance request for Circle K Market at 460 S. Campus St., was also granted by the Commissioners.

Thursday's meeting was called to take the place of the Oct. 6 meeting when several commissioners will be out of town. The Commission agreed to meet hereafter at 8 a.m. (instead of 5 p.m.) the first and third Thursday of every month.

It was agreed that the morning time would be more convenient for the Commission to meet. The next Architectural Commission meeting will be at 8 a.m., Oct. 20, in the City Council chambers.

Rotarians welcome district governor

Rotarians of Upland welcomed on Wednesday, Oct. 5, the governor of this Rotary district, Keith O. Burnham of Whittier. He addressed the local Rotary Club, one of 64 in his district, and conferred with Vern H. Orum, president of the local Rotary club, and other club officers to obtain information on the club's plans for its service activities and to offer suggestions on Rotary administrative matters.

Burnham is one of 278 Rotary governors in all parts of the world who are serving as the sole representative of Rotary International in districts comprised of member clubs. Each district leader is responsible for supervising the clubs in his area. More than 12,400 Rotary clubs in 133 countries are supervised by Rotary governors.

A member and past president of the Rotary Club of East Whittier, Burnham has a real estate business in Whittier. He was elected to office at the Rotary convention in Denver, Colo., last June, and will serve until next June 30.

"While in Upland," according to Orum, "the governor of our district will talk with us about possible growth of membership and the likelihood of forming additional Rotary clubs in nearby communities. His visit will also give us a broader understanding of the worldwide Rotary organization that today embraces nearly 600,000 men of practically all nationalities and political and religious beliefs."

One of his biggest jobs will be to hold a district conference of all Rotary clubs in this area. The conference will be held April 6-7-8, 1967, Disneyland Hotel, Anaheim.

Special Notice to Lytton Bonus Savers!

Good news! We're pleased to announce that the tens of thousands of savers who have 36-month Lytton Bonus Interest Accounts will continue to earn 5.75%, which includes a ½% bonus per year for the current quarter, with this bonus determined quarterly. Aren't you glad you already chose to be a Lytton Saver!

It's easy to get 5.25%* but getting 14 extra basis points of profit is much harder... We give it!

*current annual rate

I enjoy a tremendous sense of pride in knowing that our associations consistently give our savers more interest on their money, more profit. ☐ I'm proud of our having pioneered the concept of daily compounding. It's daily compounding that makes it possible for us to give our savers a full 14 extra basis points of profit a year above our current 5.25% interest rate. This is the highest rate in the nation on insured savings accounts and the greatest basis-point-bonus allowable under the new government rate ceilings. ☐ We're fortunate that the new regulations leave a distinct advantage to savers who save in California savings and loan associations. We believe these new regulations will be good for the nation's economy and good for you, too. Especially if you're a Lytton Saver! ☐ Profit, certainly. But, there's great safety at Lytton, too. Since our founding in 1908, we've attained a position of giant strength backed by over 500 million dollars in assets. And legal reserves that include 10 million dollars in paid-in capital. (We're a capital stock company, so that as a saver, you are a creditor, rather than a mutual shareholder.) Compare our strength, our size, our age, our record. Compare your profits. I'm confident you'll join us.

14 Basis Points, Plus Extra Interest Benefits!

In addition to earning 14 extra basis points when our 5.25% rate is maintained for a year and compounded daily, Lytton Savers also earn interest from date funds are received, paid at quarter's end, and interest to the date of withdrawal on funds held six months!

Bringing Up Baby®

Hints Collected
by Mrs. Dan Gerber, Mother of Five

TODDLER FEEDING TACTICS

Near-a-year babies or toddlers often go through an anti-milk stage. If your baby takes a stand against milk, you can see that he gets a fair share of milk through these simple ruses:

1. Serve extra portions of Gerber Cereals. Top with Gerber Fruit for an appetite incentive.

2. Whip up a simple nog: 2 Tbs. Gerber Egg Yolks • 1 can Gerber Orange Juice • 1 cup milk • 2 tsp. sugar.

3. Treat him (or her) to Gerber Custard Puddings—the ones made with whole milk solids.

The "no-no" stage. Most toddlers go through a normal stage of saying "no" to everything. If the "no" shows up at mealtime, irritating though it may be, it should be ignored like any other play for attention. Baby will stop sooner when he finds he can't annoy you.

Gerber Two-Way Lunch
Junior Spaghetti,
Tomato Sauce and Beef
Junior Creamed Spinach
Junior Peaches on Ice Cream

Nice to share a meal with your toddler occasionally. He'll probably eat more when he sees you enjoy it. (You might want to sprinkle your spaghetti with parmesan cheese.)

Practical and positive approach to feeding problems is to serve a variety of Gerber Junior Foods. "Grown-up" flavors are designed to tune up taste buds. "Custom-cooking" preserves natural nutrients to a high degree. Over 50 lively choices.

New! Delightful! Flavor-bright!

Gerber Butterscotch Pudding
Gerber Turkey Rice Dinner

Strained or junior. P.S. Added attraction for the Butterscotch Pudding: top with crumbled graham crackers for extra nourishment. Would make a toddler feel awfully grown up. Gerber® Baby Products, Box 33, Fremont, Michigan.

The American F

by Eugenia Sheppard

Fashion sketches by Barbara Pearlman

There will be a reverse twist to the European fashion story this coming year. Boatloads of clothes will be arriving from America—almost as many as will sail our way from Europe.

Since the beginning of organized fashion — couturiers and all that — American women have idolized European clothes. They have believed that European designers were endowed with some special magic, and that any dress with a foreign name sewn in at the back of the neckline puts them a couple of steps ahead in the race for status. Each season when our stores show the imports their buyers have brought back, along with the copies made here, literally thousands of women jostle each other to get into the opening and see what is going on at the top.

The funny thing, though, is that European women have become equally mad about American clothes. They love the whole concept of ready-to-wear. They admire the easy, American way of shopping, the fabrics, the fit of the clothes and the range of sizes which is three times as wide as it is any place else in the world.

That secret little dressmaker every European woman is supposed to keep hidden from her best friend may have given French women, at least, a reputation for great chic. But the dressmaker is no longer what she's reputed to be. Fittings and pinnings have become time-consuming bores.

It's a ready-to-wear world. And nobody can turn out attractive ready-to-wear clothes more quickly or more effectively than the American manufacturer. Inevitably, most European countries are starting to make ready-to-wear fashions now, but they're still a long way behind. It takes a year for their designers to finish a model and get it in the stores. And the clothes can't help but look dated — to us, at least.

If our ready-to-wear clothes haven't reached Europe before this, it isn't because European women don't know about them. Their fame has been spread by hordes of American-dressed women who are constantly on the move, traveling through Europe. (Last year the most popular gift anyone could take to a European woman was one of those printed rayon jersey shifts from Wilroy that looked as if it came from Emilio Pucci. Remember? You bought them in those plastic envelopes.)

The big barrier has been the high cost of American clothes exported to Europe. When an American dress reaches another country, the price tag can be triple what it was when it started here. And another thing: Funny as it sounds, American manufacturers have suffered from a certain lack of self-confidence. Artisans are self-conscious about admitting to artistic or creative talents. They have hung back and played follow-the-leader to the Europeans all these years.

n Fashion Invasion of Europe

Now, however, with more European ready-to-wear coming into American stores all the time, a few hardy Americans have decided to start a reverse flow. It's about time! The group is calling itself the A.E.F. Forget that these initials once stood for American Expeditionary Forces. The new connotation is American Exporters of Fashion.

There are about twelve manufacturers involved in the plan to sell American fashions to Europe in a big way. They all make moderate price clothes with familiar labels in them, like Jerry Silverman and Malcolm Starr. Silverman is well-known, especially for his flattering clothes that suit small women. Malcolm Starr is famous for glamorous, glittering evening clothes. Many of the dresses Starr will sell to European girls will be made in Hong Kong so that they won't cost as much as if they were manufactured here.

None of these fashions slated for Europe have been designed or made yet, but they will more or less follow the look of the fall collections – good fabrics, colors and, above all, that marvelous American fit. By next spring, the A.E.F. should be in action, selling dresses from new showrooms in London, Dusseldorf, Zurich and, perhaps, Brussels.

Several London stores, like Woollands' and Harrod's have been operating departments of American fashions for a long time. To raise interest even further, genial Jerry Silverman and his designer, Shannon Rogers, recently rented the famous Pavilion at Brighton for an American birthday party and fashion show.

And clothes aren't the only part of American fashion that is beating a path to Europe. At the Yves St. Laurent opening, models wore marvelous heavy silver Lurex stockings with their pumps. Backstage they were reticent about admitting it, but the stockings came direct from New York.

An American designer of costume jewelry, Coty Award-Winner Kenneth J. Lane, made the costume jewelry for Givenchy's boutique, where Audrey Hepburn shops. He was also "consultant" for St. Laurent's jewelry and many of the popular plastic Pop Art earrings look just like the kind he shows here.

It seems that we Americans are just beginning to discover what great fashion we have had all this time, right in our own backyard.

An interplay of warm color gives this library solid dignity and quiet elegance. Oak paneling is stained nut-brown and its vigorous grain is emphasized by the adjacent use of rough green slate on the fireplace wall. Chocolate velvet covers the sofa while tones of mustard, brown and terra cotta are used on the chairs. For punctuation: the painted finish of a William and Mary chest, and the pattern of a Savonnerie-type rug.

Charcoal flannel-covered walls are studded with silvery metal nailheads for a stunning paneled effect. The same feeling of glitter on dark color is repeated in the stainless steel edging of the bookshelves, which are upholstered in morocco leather. (Vinyl can substitute for leather.) Sofa and chairs, tailored for comfort, are covered in tawny tweed or suede-cloth. Softening accents: Fox fur pillows and an antique Bessarabian rug.

Colors need not be dark to be restful, as proven by this airy, country library. Royal and white bamboo-pattern wallpaper introduces a see-through quality that opens up the room. White woodwork and rugs establish a clear background for lime green, slate blue and yellow upholstery fabrics. Light pours through arched windows, curtainless to feature a view of the garden. Great color accent: Slate blue, lining stark white bookcases.

Room for Thought

...a place to get away from it all

by YALE R. BURGE

How long has it been since you could find a place to get away from it all – a quiet place away from the family bustle, from business, from the world? Our grandparents had just such a place. To them it was the den, the library, the study –or even the back parlor. But whatever they called it, it provided a room for thought.

Today, we need to rediscover this almost forgotten luxury. A retreat of this kind offers a special kind of privacy. It's made for reading, listening to music, pursuing a hobby, visiting quietly with some member of the family or doing absolutely nothing. It's pure luxury, and easily available.

Consider the areas in your home which might be put to use as a room for complete relaxation. What about that seldom-used guest-room, or a section of the attic or basement? Once you have found the proper location, all that is needed is a little imagination and some simple construction. Here an interior designer can be of inestimable value.

The mood of the room is created by the manner in which it is decorated. A dark brown study, for instance, is not only a fitting expression for a certain state of mind, but also an accurate description of a great in-home library. While library might sound a bit pretentious, this room represents a quiet place to sit, in comfort and solitude. The room is handsome, relaxed, as expensive as you want to make it and always, somehow, secure.

While everything in the room is important, from the leather or vinyl upholstered furniture to the handsome fabrics and rugs, the design emphasis is on the walls, which should be made to create a distinguished architectural background. They may take on rich, dark tones when wood-paneled in mahogany, oak or rosewood veneers. But fabric-covered walls can be used to create equally strong and stunning effects.

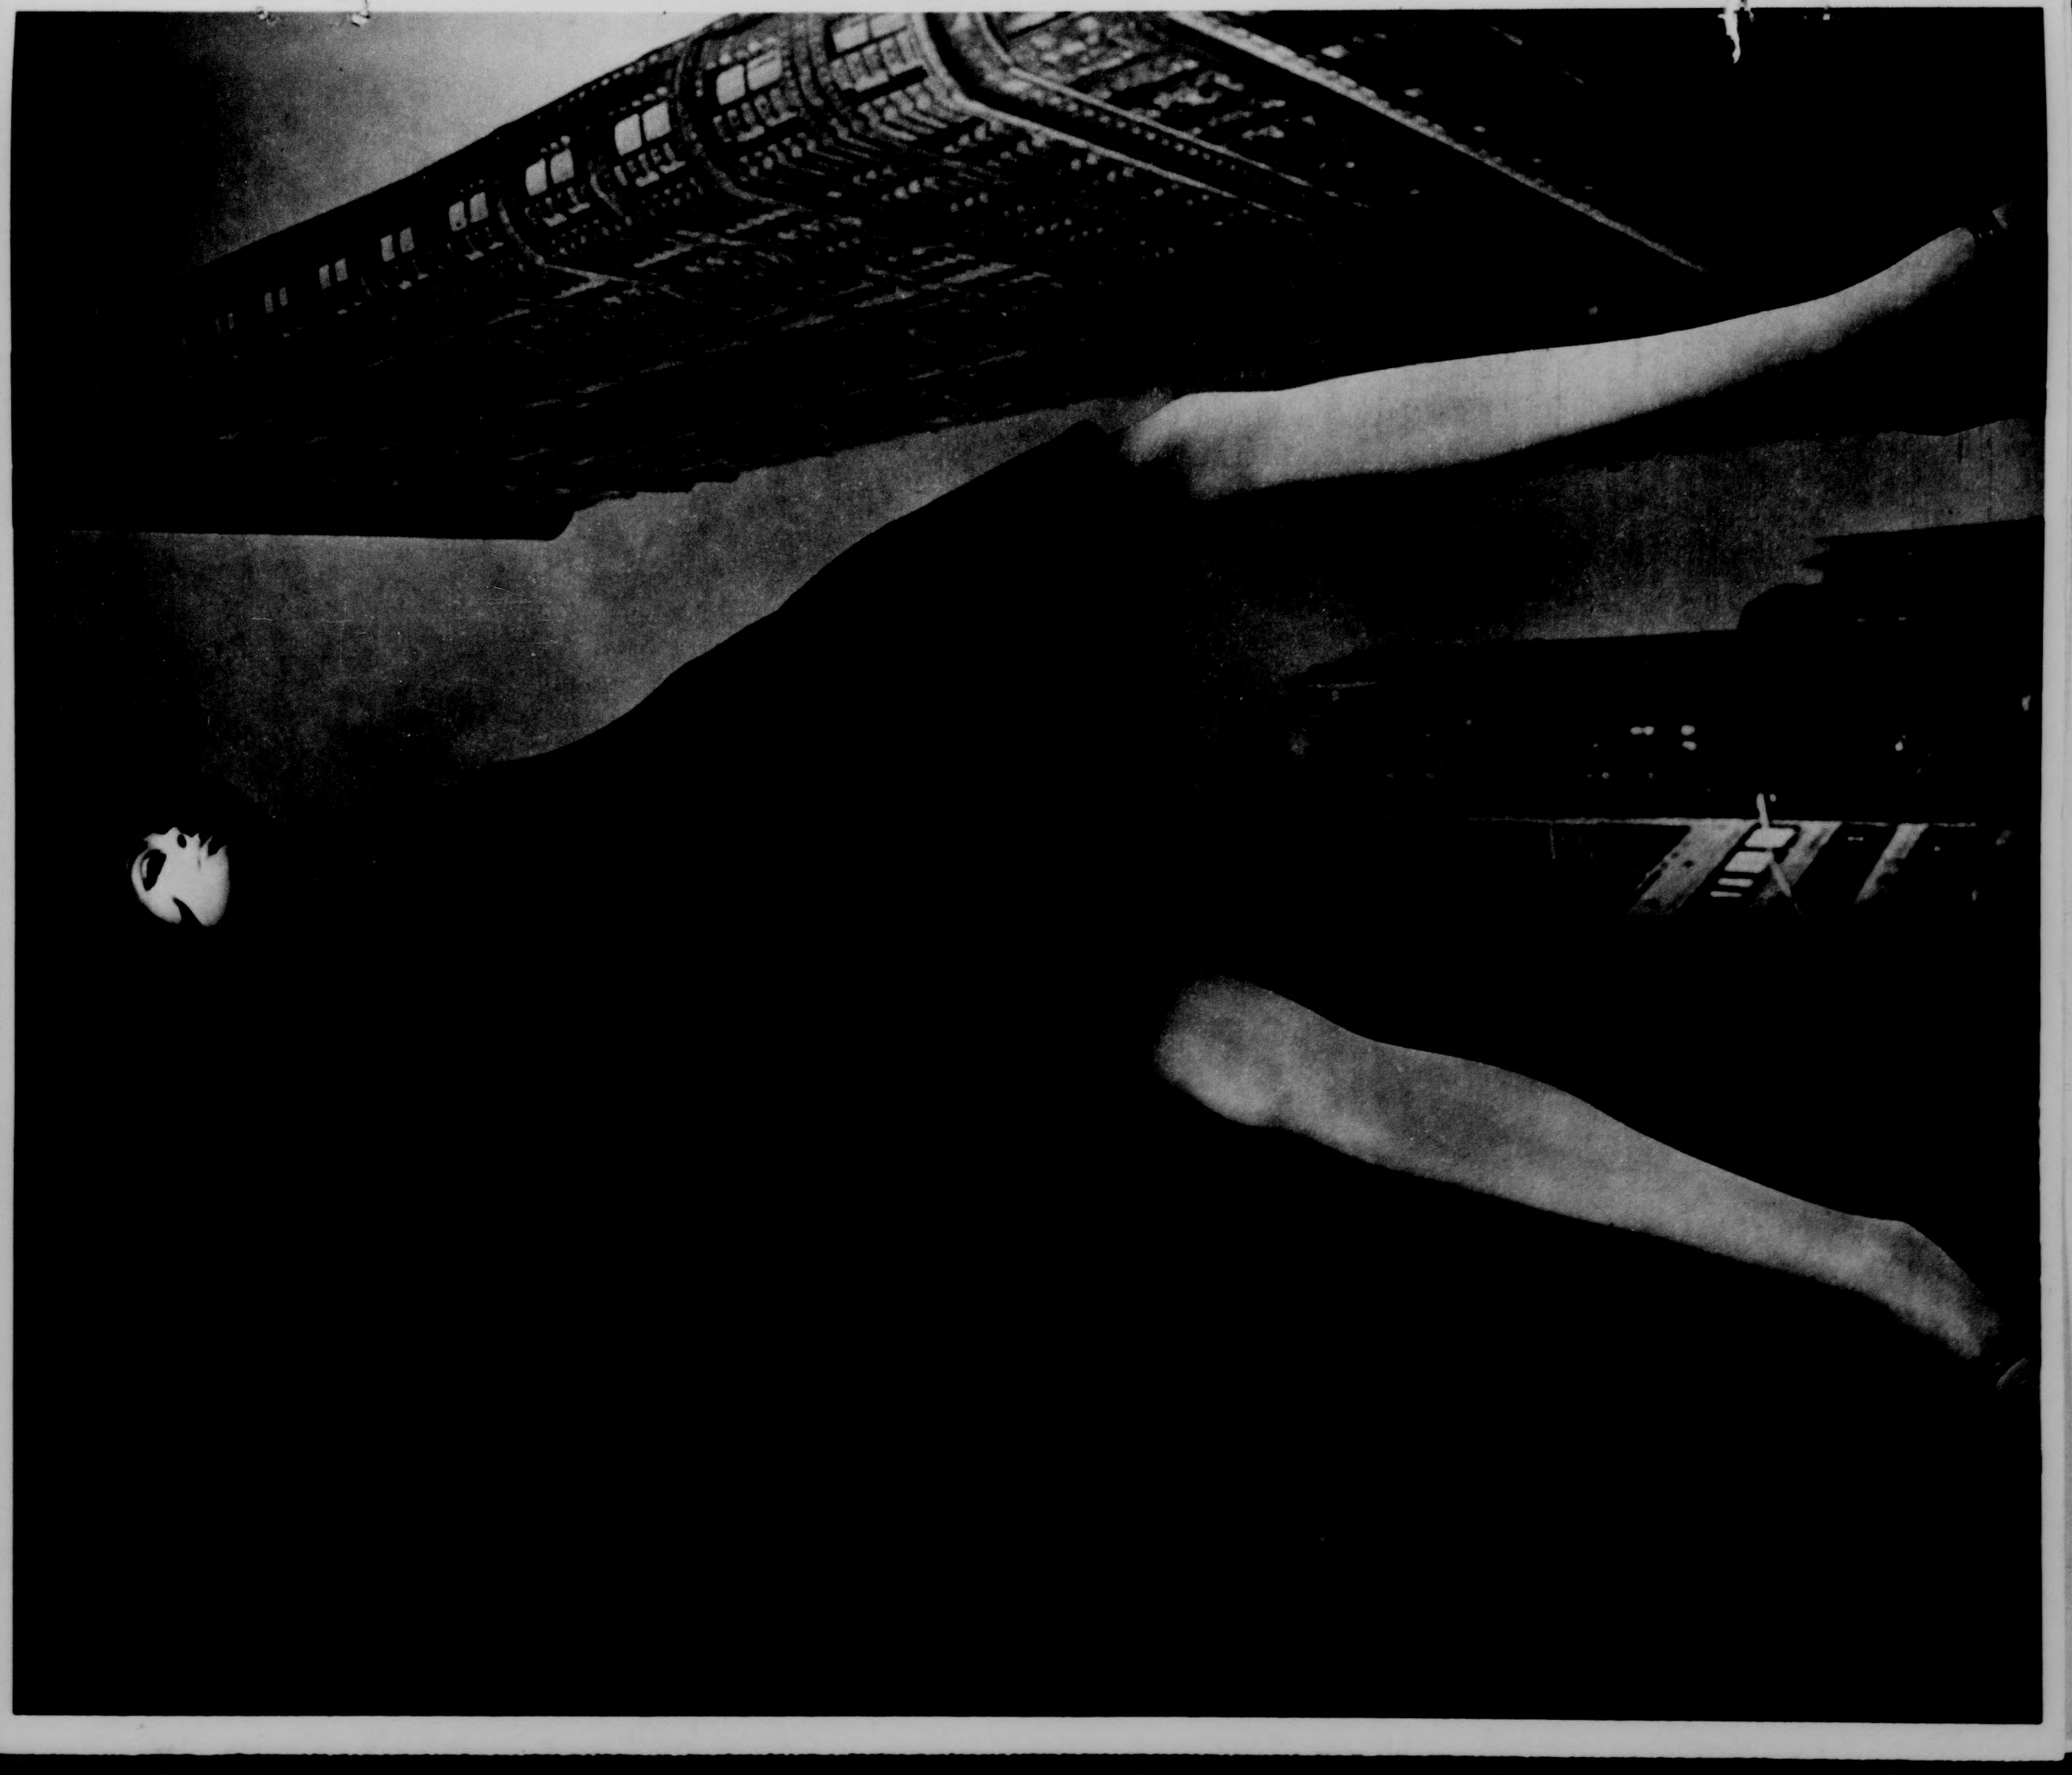

In combination with these walls, your bookcases gain new dimensions. They should be used to extend the decorating mood rather than interrupt it for mere utilitarian purposes. When properly designed, your bookcases may well become the pièce de résistance, displaying your most cherished tomes.

The simplest-to-construct bookshelves are those of wood or glass, suspended on brackets in wall-mounted metal strips. Despite their ease of construction however, you may prefer built-in bookshelves, which have a more architectural character and allow greater individuality of detailing and finishing. For a rented house or apartment, built-in effects can be achieved with free-standing bookcases made to stack atop each other. These units can be combined in various arrangements to suit new space requirements if you move.

The wide range of handsome building materials currently available practically assures success in designing the bookshelf unit. Wood shelves may be handsomely grained veneers. They also can be stained in a variety of ways. One new stain allows the grain to show through bright, unexpected shades of red or turquoise. Paint, plastic laminates, wallpaper or fabric can cover shelves of more ordinary wood.

In fact, there should be no clear line drawn between the functional and the decorative. For if planned with both imagination and ingenuity, they will work together to create that room you have wished for – a quiet place to get away from it all.

Will The Real JOHNNY CHUNG Please Stand Up?

by Arthur Lenahan

Twenty-five years ago "Bullet" Bill Dudley of the University of Virginia was leading the nation's collegiate gridiron scorers with 134 points; Frank Sinkwich was on his way to rolling up a total 1,872 yards gained for the University of Georgia; Bruce Smith was leading the University of Minnesota to the 1941 College Football Championship; and a fleet-footed Chinese halfback named Johnny Chung was gaining considerable press coverage sparking Plainfield Teachers to football immortality.

Harold Rosenthal, sports editor of the old New York Herald Tribune, recalled the beginning of the Chung story not long ago. As he tells it, he was sitting at his desk in the sports department on Saturday evening, Oct. 25, 1941, waiting for the first edition of the paper to come out, when the phone rang. The conversation, according to an account that later appeared in The Football News, went like this:

"Sports department?" asked an amiable voice. "I'd like to report a football score. Plainfield Teachers, 27; Winona, 3."

"Plainfield Teachers, that a New Jersey school?" queried Rosenthal.

"Yes."

"Okay, thanks very much."

Rosenthal scribbled down the score, to be printed in the Sunday paper in the sports-results column headed EAST, and thus became an unwitting accomplice in the instigation of one of the greatest football hoaxes of all time.

What Rosenthal did not know was that the amiable voice on the other end of the wire belonged to Morris Newburger, a sports fan and partner in Newburger and Loeb, the Wall Street brokerage firm. Newburger subscribed wholeheartedly to the belief that football players are made, not born. He had decided to create one, along with a full-size team for him to star on.

Newburger knew the football scene. He knew that reporters did not attend small games, and the papers relied upon public-spirited parties at the schools to phone in the results of the games on Saturday night. He knew of the chaotic conditions caused by the fact that there was a war, and a draft, on; colleges were starting up with a football schedule one Saturday and dropping it the next. These factors, coupled with Newburger's continuing fascination with the inclusion in the Sunday columns of such institutions as Slippery Rock Teachers College, gave him all he needed to go ahead and plant his imaginary football team.

Riding on his one-shot success with The Trib, he proceeded to map out weekly schedules for the "Jersey Dons." They were to play against such fearful foes and traditional rivals as Scott, Chesterton, Randolph Tech, Ingersoll, St. Joseph's, Appalachian Tech and Harmony Teachers, an imposing schedule for any team, and particularly for nonexistent Plainfield.

But Plainfield had Johnny Chung. Known as the "Celestial Comet," he ran riot over his foes. And his success was not to be attributed to talent alone. It was now made known that his prowess stemmed directly from his "time-honored" habit of devouring a bowl of rice at half-time.

Thus it was that after trouncing Winona one week, Plainfield made it into The Trib and The Times the following week by beating Randolph Tech 35-0. Who was the star? That charging, 205-pound Chinese back, Johnny Chung. (Funny, but all teams looked alike to Chung.)

It must be reported that on one newspaper to which Newburger phoned in the result of the big game, a rewrite man asked about the location of Randolph Tech.

"What do you mean?" asked Newburger, caught short for a ready and pat answer.

"I mean, is it in the East, or the South, or where? Sounds like a school in Wilmington."

"In Wilmington?" parried Newburger. "No, it's just outside."

Of course, every period has its hoaxes, not necessarily in the field of sports. In the late 1700's an 18-year-old boy "discovered" two "lost" plays written by Shakespeare. He managed to have them produced at the famed Drury Lane Theatre before finally admitting that he had written them himself. In the late 1830's, a reporter, striving to build circulation for his struggling newspaper, announced that "The Edinburgh Journal of Science" had found life on the moon and had his readers believing it. But later he admitted to inventing the story himself. Even Edgar Allan Poe had a hand in a hoax when, in the 1840's, he deceived the leading intellects with an account of a trans-Atlantic balloon flight. But the biggest fraud of the 1940's belongs singularly to Morris Newburger.

Newburger now enjoyed the sweetest taste of success. Having duped both The Times and The Tribune, he accelerated into high gear. He "hired" a mythical public relations man to publicize Plainfield and Johnny Chung. He had stationery printed with "Plainfield Teachers Athletic Association" emblazoned at the top to add a touch of authenticity. And he invented a head coach named Ralph "Hurry-Up" Hoblitzel to guide the fortunes of the Dons. "Hurry-Up" pioneered, and was widely heralded for, the unorthodox W-formation, an offensive weapon shaped for the particular talents of the swivel-hipped "Celestial Comet."

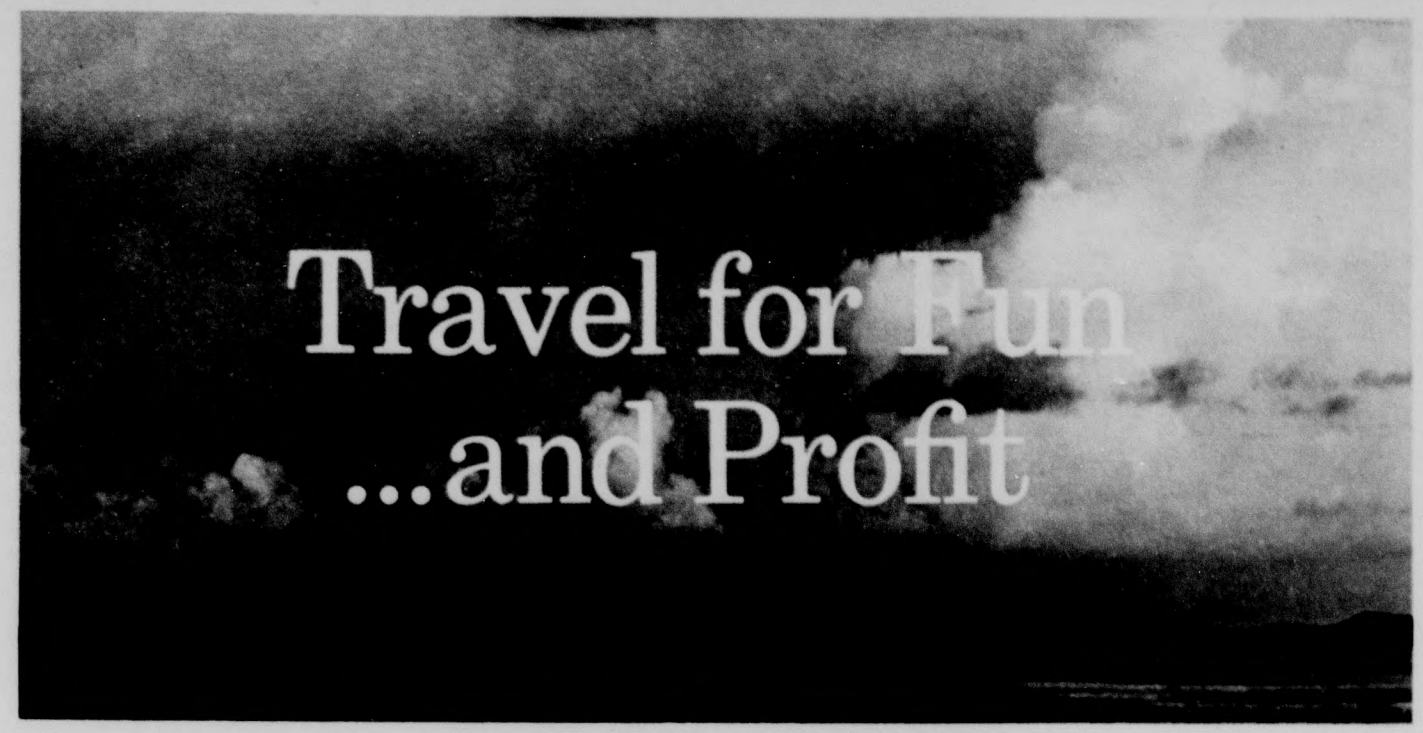

Chung, fortified by his half-time bowls of rice, had by this time been credited with scoring 57 of the 98 points scored by his team and had chalked up an average gain of nine and three-tenths yards every time he carried the ball. (Apparently the "W" Formation was his "Cup of T.") He had captured the imagination of the press and was being hailed as an easy bet for the "Little All-American" team. Wrote one football "expert": "Johnny Chung, Plainfield Teachers' Chinese sophomore halfback, has lead his unbeaten and untied team in four starts . . . If the Jersey Dons don't watch out, he may crop up in Chiang Kai-shek's offensive department one of these days."

By now Newburger had let all his Wall Street friends in on the gag and they were roaring with laughter. A prank played on the staid old Times and The Trib! And then The Trib unmasked the fraud, when they attempted to assign a reporter to cover the nonexistent school's next game.

Faced with the bad news, Newburger pleaded to be allowed to finish out his schedule. He would have Chung hurt while dragging five tacklers across the goal line in a close win over Appalachian Tech, then come back the next week to personally cripple the Harmony Teachers team. No dice. The luck of Newburger and of Johnny Chung had run out.

The Times never saw fit to publicly acknowledge their mistake. The Trib, on the other hand, grandly and permanently immortalized Plainfield Teachers by printing a "school song" composed to the tune of Cornell's famous "Far Above Cayuga's Waters," that went like this:

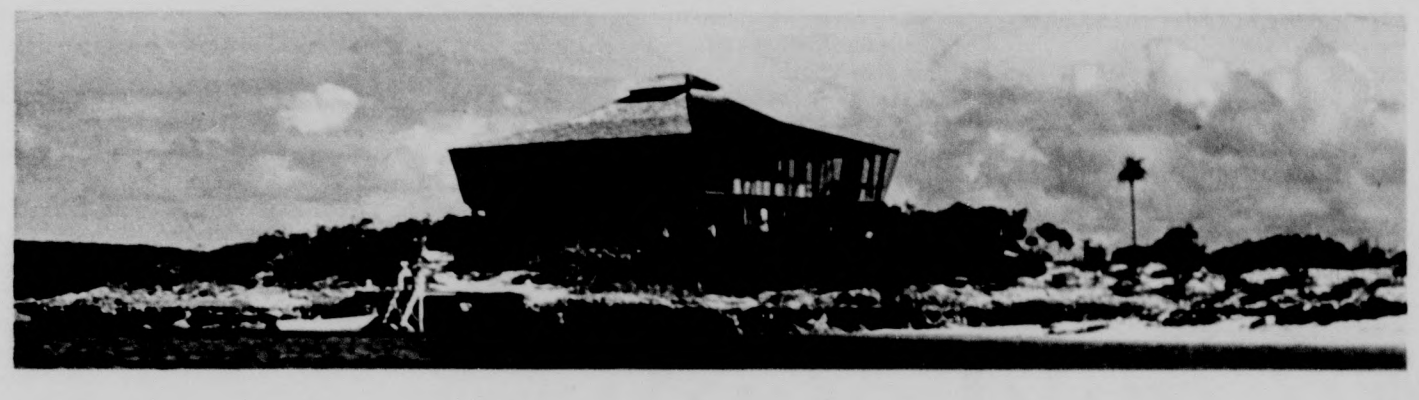

Far above New Jersey's swamplands,
Plainfield Teachers' spires,
Mark a phantom, phony college
That got on the wires.
Perfect record made on paper,
Imaginary team!
Hail to thee, our ghostly college,
Product of a dream!

TRY THE NEWEST, MOST EXCITING INVESTMENT PLAN– AND VACATION WHILE YOU DO IT

There is a family in Alaska whose members happily visit a cooperative apartment they own in Honolulu at least once a year. In between times, they rent the island lodging. A New York lawyer owns three houses in the city and rents them all, against the day when he decides which one he wants to live in when he retires. A thrifty actor has been able, over a period of a few years, to buy 17½ assorted acres on mountainous Tortola in the British Virgin Islands. He can't live on them all, but the ones he doesn't build on are without question a gold-plated (or pound-sterling) investment. Leicester Hemingway, the late novelist's brother, carried this sort of thing to a logical extreme last year when he anchored an 8-by-30 foot bamboo raft to a reef a few miles off Jamaica and christened it New Atlantis. Then he announced plans to seek recognition by other "sovereign states" and issue postage stamps.

All of the above are people who have been clever enough and far-sighted enough to build or buy a "second home." (Mr. Hemingway's, admittedly, may be a trifle drafty for most.) And they found it a great adventure. On the other side of the coin, are the practical aspects of such an adventure. It answers the oft heard question, "Where shall we live when the children are grown up?", and it offers a source of revenue if rented during the periods when the owners are absent.

Let's say you're flying over the Caribbean, and the plane swoops low to approach an island. You are dazzled by the sunlit water below—patterned in jade, turquoise and lavender. Creamy froth curls up on the golden beach. And then, suddenly, a bluff looms high over the sea, and you know straight-off it's the perfect place to build the house of your dreams. Will you act on the idea—find out who owns the land, how much an acre costs, what sort of a mortgage can be arranged? Or will you think wistfully about it later and wish you had?

Or you're motoring in Majorca, keeping a cautious eye on three nuns in a donkey cart, and suddenly there it is—the house that you've been waiting for. Of course, it may need some remodeling—perhaps a good bit of remodeling—but what's that if this is the house of your dreams? Will you follow your instrincts and commit yourself, both emotionally and financially? Lots of people have.

A lady artist bought an old ruin of a tower in Ireland and is hard at work fitting out the place with such amenities as a bathroom and hot water. She rents her apartment in New York. A man who has traveled to far parts recently settled for "roof rights" in Minorca (Majorca's little sister). He knew when he saw it that the island was for him. So when he couldn't get the beach property he wanted, but was offered rights to the flat top of a house nearby, he thought, "Why not?" His house in the sky isn't built yet, but he has hopes that he and his Spanish-speaking architect will have a meeting of the minds on the blueprints soon.

It's not just Americans who are getting in on the "second-home" boom. Europeans are, too. The English, especially, caught on years ago, and are plentiful in Portugal, Italy and Spain. One might say that the sun never sets on a Briton who has a home abroad. It will be interesting, incidentally, to see whether the English, and their neighbors on the Continent, now begin to search for their "homes away from home" in this country. The U.S.A. offers a wide variety of sun-drenched retreats. For instance, a New York stockbroker bought a hideaway in New Mexico that proved so popular with his family that one of his sons asked for, and got, permission to attend school there.

There are real estate people everywhere. And it's a wide, wide world. So when you go off on that next trip, watch where, and while, you're going. It may be nothing you want, but then again it may. All of us have a pretty good idea of the landscape that would make us happy: Bucks County (a warm barn), Frederiksted (an old cottage) or the St. Lawrence River (quiet fields and stone houses).

Plan your next trip with that "second home" in mind. It won't cost you any more to travel with a buying eye.

But plan it now!

Herein lies a well-done tale, dished up by an olde master story-teller...

"One cold coming up, medium rare"

by Goodman Ace

Up near Niagara someone's electric toothbrush developed a short last fall – according to an enlightened story as told by Con Edison–and we had a mysterious blackout that developed into a cold. Well, it wasn't exactly the blackout that caused the cold. The blackout was more of a catalyst.

When a guy sneezes in the Gemini capsule, it makes the front pages and the whole country says, "God bless you." I sneezed, hacked, sniffled and dribbled for two weeks after the aforementioned blackout and all it got me was "Goddamnyou, stay away from me." Do you have a minute? I'd like to tell you about it. It went like this . . .

My wife, Jane, lit candles that blacked-out night, just as everybody else did, and we decided that we looked more romantic by candlelight. So we had candlelight dinners many nights after that.

It was during one of these romantic, dimly lit, flickering dinners that I complimented her on the roast beef. She replied, "Stupid, that's sweetbreads," when the phone rang. I groped my way to the instrument, and in the hush of the night and by the light of the silvery moon (and little else), I stubbed my toe against a chair. And that is painful! I said, "Gee!," "Man!," "Yow!" and a lot of other three-letter words. Then phoned my doctor quick.

"Doc," I said, "I stubbed my toe against a chair."

"Which one?" he asked.

"The arm chair in the study by my desk," I replied.

"Not which chair. Which toe?" he shouted.

"Why?" I asked. "Do you have a different cure for each toe?"

"Look," he said, "I'm in the middle of dinner. Come into my office tomorrow and I'll X-ray it."

"OK," I said, "if I can walk tomorrow. I'll have to put some cotton between the toe I stubbed and the next one, and that'll relieve the pain when I walk."

"That's ridiculous," he said. "Never heard of it. You be in my office tomorrow at 9 and I'll see if it's broken."

The next morning I hobbled into his office. He X-rayed the toe and announced it was not broken.

"But what do I do when I walk? It hurts terribly, Doc."

"I'll tell you what you do," he said. "Put some cotton between the toe you stubbed and the one next to it and that'll relieve the pain when you walk."

"Thanks a lot, Doc," I said. "What a marvelous idea."

"And one more thing," he added. "Wear soft shoes. Do you have a pair of soft mesh shoes that you wear in the summer? Wear them."

So I did. In my soft mesh shoes I took the train the next day to visit some friends who had just bought a summer home in Westchester County. It rained on, and in, my soft mesh shoes as my hosts showed me around their grounds. And it rained on, and in, them as I waited for the train to take me home.

The New York Central Railroad, it may be noted here, has windows that no human hand has ever been able to open or shut. Not a breath of air, fresh or dirty, ever penetrates them. But on this ride, with the window sealed by epoxy, a draft found its way to the back of my neck and I caught a cold all the way down to my soft mesh (wet) shoes.

Early the next morning, after a three-box, double-Kleenex night, I phoned my friend, the doctor, at his home.

"Doc," I said, "you know those soft mesh shoes you told me to wear? I wore them and it rained on my soft mesh shoes and I caught a cold."

"I told you to wear them," he cried, "but I didn't tell you to wear them in the rain. Do you have a temperature?"

"Ninety-nine-point-one," I said. "I just took it."

"Was that orally?" he asked.

"Sure. Why? Did you want me to put it in writing?"

"Look," he said. "I'm in the middle of breakfast," (He was always eating.) "I'll be down as soon as I get through."

He came. He took my temperature. He looked at the thermometer.

"Ninety-nine-point-one," he announced.

"Thanks a lot, Doc," I said.

"I'll leave you some pills. Take this pill every four hours."

"The same one?" I asked.

"Look," he said, "I'm in the middle of a lot of sick patients." (He's always in the middle of something.) "You just stay in bed and drink hot drinks. And for heaven's sake, don't go near anybody. See you later."

I thought that over for awhile and decided I couldn't let him dismiss me that easily, so around noon I called his office.

"Doc," I said, "I'm sorry to bother you. Are you in the middle of lunch?"

"No, I'm just beginning lunch," he said.

"Oh, well, you know the hot drinks you told me to take?"

"What about it?"

"Well, I drank one and it upset my stomach."

"What hot drink did you have?"

"Beer."

"Oh, for heaven's sake! You drank hot beer?"

"Well, warm, anyway."

There was an apoplectic silence. "Look," he said, "I want you to stay in one temperature–and no draft."

"Is that draft beer, Doc?"

He slammed down the phone. He's forever in the middle of eating something or slamming something. I think he's just about ready for Medicare himself. I know now why they say that a cold is an ailment that can be cured in one week with a doctor's care, and in seven days without it.

Well, that's the story. I can hardly wait for the Second Annual Blackout. I've already had Jane throw away all our candles, laid in a stock of flashlights and kerosene lanterns and rearranged the furniture so that no one, especially me, can trip over anything.

Sportswear by McGregor-Doniger

When London introduced brevity in men's coats and jackets, the American male was quick to accept the style. Could it be his answer to his girl's skimp-skirt and mini-coat? Whatever the motivation, brevity is the soul of one of the new looks that is sweeping the country this season. It's a new dimension in sportswear, putting far greater emphasis on trim, slim trousers combined with country boots, making for a tall, lean look.

Short-cuts often have dual personalities. They are absolutely functional and allow for far more freedom of action. The four styles shown here are examples of what's new for cross-country walking or travel by sports car. But they have other lives to live. College men – and alumni – have decided upon the peajacket and the reversed sheepskin jacket for stadium wear. And these can double as ski clothes. On the other hand, the classic British Warm and the leather-buttoned checked tweed coat come to town in winter. Here is a glimpse of short-cuts on the men's sportswear fashion scene, 1966-67.

(Upper right) The International coat (32 inches) of reversed shearling lamb; worn over London turtleneck multi-color striped Orlon sweater.

(Lower left) Chelsea peajacket (30 inches) in wide wale corduroy; Orlon lined, double-breasted, with epaulets and deep side slash pockets.

(Lower right) District check tweed coat (34 inches) in tan/brown check; double-breasted, with leather buttons, Orlon lining, hacking side pockets.

Two After Five.....

the way to Your Man's Heart

by CHARLOTTE ADAMS

Author of several best-selling cookbooks and currently a consultant to leading food companies.

Those who complain that the pressure of housework kills some of the beauty in marriage will find no argument here. The complaint seems valid, especially when bolstered by daydreams peopled with upstairs and downstairs maids. But if facts must be faced, so must marital beauty be preserved. To that end we offer a recipe. Easily executed, it promises dinner for just two at the very best part of the day—after 5, at home, alone together. (Children? Well, just once in a while they would love to have a special outing at a friend's house, with their grandparents, anywhere without their parents. Promote it. You'll love it, too.)

The ingredients for the recipe are not unfamiliar, but they often are reserved for guests. Take the same ingredients, leave out the guests and find new magic, all your own. The basic requirements are You and Your Husband; candlelight; a warm and different-from-usual table setting, and a delicious dinner, cooked in advance (or frozen), ready to heat and serve.

Many will want to lead off with the special enchantment of cocktails in the living room in front of the fire. Because you have dressed for the occasion and, best of all, your dinner is all ready to serve, you are off to a marvelous evening.

To add a fillip to the cocktail hour, serve an appetizer that really is an appetizer—liver paté with toast, or smoked oysters, for instance. Then, while a fresh cocktail is in the making, slip into the kitchen to start your dinner reheating. This trip to the kitchen, plus the few minutes it takes to serve it, represents all the work you do this evening. Who needs servants? They only get in the way.

The success of your evenings hinges on organization and imagination. Both the table setting and the meal should receive full attention well before 5 o'clock, preferably sometime in the morning.

Your dining table sets the tone for the evening . . . so arrange a setting both exquisite and exciting. Candlelight, gleaming silver, elegant china and sparkling glassware are musts. The accents: the centerpiece, the accessories and the table linen.

These accents present the greatest challenge to your creativity and offer the greatest rewards. A delightful table setting adds luster to even the most perfect meal. Flowers, fruit, vegetables, or just green leaves can be arranged to make a lovely centerpiece. (An objet d'art, borrowed from another part of the house, can serve as a unique accessory, either in combination with or in place of a centerpiece.)

Your table linen offers the greatest opportunity to introduce a splash of mood-building color. If you have seen all of your linen too often, invest in a length of colorful fabric with which to cover your table top. Then, coordinate the napkins.

It is not necessary to serve a first course. However, if you decide to do so, make it simple. You might dress up a canned or dehydrated soup. For instance, mix canned pea soup with canned turtle soup, heat and film with whipped cream just before serving. That's an excellent boula. Or mix any shredded seafood into canned tomato soup and dilute with light cream instead of milk. You can ring a thousand changes with canned soup.

Your entrée might well take the form of a casserole. It can be prepared in the morning and refrigerated, or made days in advance and frozen. Be sure to use a casserole dish that will complement your silver and china. The best type is of enameled iron or other metal. They come in a variety of lovely colors and can be used equally well on top of the range or in the oven.

The British have long used a serving system in their country houses which fits exceedingly well into our pattern of gracious living today. The main-course dishes are placed on a buffet. And for this type of serving, an electric hot tray is one of the world's greatest inventions. Dinner plates can be heated on it before the casserole or other hot dish is placed there when dinner is served.

All that remains is the dessert—or, if you wish, a salad with cheese and crackers. Fruit, with or without cheese, also will do nicely. And don't overlook those packaged desserts. Many of them can be dressed up so that they seem like the products of a French chef. For instance, there's a new egg custard mix from which you can make a very presentable crème brûlée practically effortlessly. Or you might heat little shredded wheat biscuits in the oven and at the same time heat honey, which you pour over them in time to let it soak in well. Served sprinkled with nuts it's your own version of baklava.

The following two dishes are made to order for this, your night of nights. When accompanied by wine—the epitome of elegance and romance—these dishes are fit for any king, especially yours!

CHICKEN LIVER PATÉ

1 pound chicken livers
½ pound butter
1 tablespoon finely minced shallot or scallion
1 tablespoon minced fresh parsley
¼ cup cognac
1 teaspoon salt
Freshly ground pepper to taste
Dash nutmeg

Fry the chicken livers in a little of the butter over medium heat 8 minutes, or until done. Put into blender with remaining ingredients and whirl until well mixed and smooth. Pack in a crock and refrigerate at least 24 hours. The remaining portion can be rechilled for later use.

SEAFOOD CURRY

½ pound fresh crabmeat
½ pound lobster meat
12 shrimp shelled, cleaned and cooked
4 teaspoons butter
¼ cup chopped onion
¼ teaspoon mashed garlic
1 teaspoon shredded fresh ginger root
2 teaspoons curry powder (or to taste)
¼ teaspoon brown sugar
4 teaspoons flour
⅔ cup chicken stock
⅔ cup plain yogurt

Melt butter in a casserole and in it fry the onion, garlic and ginger until golden. Add curry powder, sugar and flour and mix well. Add stock gradually, stirring constantly until thickened. Add yogurt. Add seafood and heat well, but do not boil. Cool, refrigerate. Reheat gently. Serve with rice, condiments and a green vegetable or salad.

THE MIND

Explore THE MIND for 10 days as a guest of the LIFE Science Library

In ancient rite, Mexican priestess prepares "magic mushrooms," called divine because they produce ecstatic visions.

Ten billion "thought cells" are helping you to read this page. And, as your mind yields up its mysteries to science, those cells—which manufacture thoughts, dreams, sensations and feelings—have been tracked down. Those which generate damaging emotions and behavior are submitting to chemical control. Those which aid learning are being multiplied in their efficiency. The day of the super-mind may be dawning.

All the new facts and exciting implications in this field are presented in an extraordinary volume, THE MIND, prepared for the general reader by the Editors of the LIFE Science Library.

In THE MIND you'll see revolutionary teaching machines that assail all five senses at once—you'll consider alcoholism as a biochemical deficiency responsive to medication—you'll find intelligence tests to sample and you'll learn how they're constructed—you'll see the world the insane inhabit through the medium of their fantastic paintings—reproduced in stark color—you'll gain understanding from the brilliant photo-essay on the life and works of Sigmund Freud—you'll learn about "mind changing" drugs and see a witch doctor preparing "magic mushrooms" to induce holy visions—and you'll be amazed at the incredible teamwork of body and spirit required in the making of music.

This conquest of inner space, the mind, is even more exciting than our adventures in outer space. In the foreseeable future, we will be able to increase the mind's powers and correct its errors with scientific certainty.

To discover the scope of these findings, why not borrow a copy of THE MIND, without obligation? Let this excursion into self knowledge be your introduction to the LIFE Science Library.

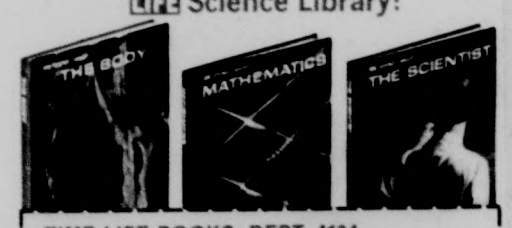

Prepared with a unique combination of authority, clarity, and visual drama, THE MIND is typical of this exciting series designed to simplify, unify, organize and dramatize the whole fascinating world of science. Even if your knowledge of psychology extends scarcely beyond your ability to spell the word, you'll be caught up in a world of wonders.

In THE MIND, you'll learn about physical and chemical possibilities which make standard psychiatry seem pale. Brain chemistry is working new miracles every day. It has already largely replaced shock treatment for the disturbed, and has made some forms of brain surgery, such as prefrontal lobotomy, a thing of the past. Minute electrical charges promise the basis for a new therapy. Altering the current in the thalamus at the base of the brain can effect tremendous personality changes—even to the altering of sex.

These few words and pictures simply can't do justice to this achievement. That's why we want you to borrow a copy without obligation for 10 days. Then return it if you wish. Or keep it for less than you'd expect to pay for such a lavish book. In either case be sure your children see the book. This series holds a special fascination for people of all ages. Thanks to TIME-LIFE's vast facilities and large print orders, you pay only $3.95 (plus shipping and handling). Then you will be entitled to examine another volume free every two months.
